

Police Powers Of Lithuania End at Memel

Observers Say
Change in Status
Depends on Berlin
NAZIS TRIUMPH

Envoy Expected to Reveal Reich Proposals for District

Kaunas, Lithuania — (P) — Confronted with growing agitation for return of Memel to Germany, President Antanas Smetona, in his second inaugural speech today, said his country wanted friendly relations with Germany concerning the former reich territory.

He declared that "small states" in Europe "must be careful."

Taking the oath of office for his new seven-year term as president of Lithuania, Smetona stressed his desire to cooperate with Germany in fulfilling complete Memel autonomy.

Memel, Lithuania — (P) — The pro-Nazi Memel directory, flushed with what it termed a smashing victory in parliamentary elections yesterday, decreed the end of Lithuanian police powers today in this former German territory.

The decree asserted that only police of autonomous Memel would be permitted to control security of the territory lying at Lithuania's southwest corner adjoining Germany.

Lithuanian police who heretofore have collaborated with Memel's autonomous force now will be regarded as private citizens.

Political observers declared final decision as to any change in the territorial status of Memel, object of German ambitions to expand along the Baltic, would be made in Berlin, not Memel.

The Lithuanian government, which holds a somewhat nominal sovereignty over Memel, awaited the return from Berlin of the German minister. It was expected he would bring precise German proposals for the future of the disputed region.

Student Strike
A student strike was called in Kaunas as President Antanas Smetona, re-elected last month without opposition, took the oath for a new seven-year term.

An attempt to call a general strike, however, failed.

Students of the University of Kaunas, the agricultural academy and commercial and pedagogical students picketed their buildings.

The strikes followed the Nazi victory in Memel and an emergency decree "for protection of the state" but the strikers' demands were not clearly specified.

Private sources in Kaunas said more than 100 students had been arrested before the strike but many of them were released.

Memel's "horse doctor" fuhrer, Ernst Neumann, 50-year-old veterinarian, sounded a rallying cry that "the time is ripe for a decision in Memel."

Nazis Triumph
He was backed by yesterday's vote, which showed over 96 per cent of Memel's eligible voters — 90 per cent of the region's 150,000 inhabitants are of German origin — had participated in the election.

Final results will be known later this week, but 26 of the 29 Landtag (parliament) seats were expected to fall to the Nazis.

That would be a net gain of two seats for the Germans. Political observers said the new members would be more ardently Nazi than the old legislature which, with semi-autonomous powers, governed the 1,000 square mile territory formerly belonging to Germany.

Neumann declared "We have begged for our rights for 15 years and we shall beg no more."

Those words were taken as foreshadowing a new demand for return to the reich when Memel's Landtag meets late in January.

The only casualty of Sunday election disorders was an American, Robert Sellmer, free-lance newspaper man of Milwaukee, Wis., who told authorities he was beaten by three uniformed guards for not replying to the Hitler salute as he was crossing a Memel street.

TIE UP ACCOUNTS

Pending a more complete investigation, the $103,000 brokerage account of the wife of F. Donald Coster (above), president of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., was tied up by a court order. Federal and state officials were seeking millions of dollars of assets of the drug firm which an accountant said might be "non-existent."

Yearly Boost of $.589,962 Asked For Wisconsin U

Dykstra's Request Does Not Include Costs of
New Buildings

Madison — (P) — Governor-elect Julius P. Heil abruptly adjourned a hearing on the University of Wisconsin budget today with instructions to President C. A. Dykstra that he return later with a clear and definite breakdown of the annual per capita cost of educating students at the university.

Madison — (P) — An annual increase of $589,962 in state appropriations to operate the University of Wisconsin during the next two years exclusive of new building programs, was requested by President C. A. Dykstra today in a budget message to Governor-elect Julius P. Heil.

Dykstra presented a "rock bottom" total of $4,543,167 for the first fiscal year beginning next July and estimated a similar amount would be needed for the following, or an aggregate of about $9,086,500 for the biennium.

The total increase over the current biennium would be about $1,179,952.

Also presented was an outline of building plans to provide more space on the campus, which Dykstra said was sorely needed. This amounted to $1,965,000 for the first year and $2,465,000 for the second — a total of $4,430,000. The building requests, however, were not included in the "rock bottom" budget.

Green-Hooded Bandit Is Sought at Beloit

Beloit — (P) — A green-hooded bandit who has struck three times in the last two months was sought by police today following a $1,300 holdup.

The gunman entered the Chrystal Food store Saturday night and took the day's receipts from the cash register. Emmanuel Balaban and Joseph Kapitanoff, two clerks and three customers were held at bay with a pistol. Police said the gunman fled in an old automobile.

On Oct. 8 a gunman wearing a light green hood entirely covering his head obtained $737 at a grocery store, and a similarly-garbed bandit secured $76 on Dec. 5.

Report 2 Firms Rule Most of Glass Industry

Control 96.6 of Nation's Container Production,
Witness Says

PATENTS ARE CAUSE
Monopoly Committee Is Told Processes 'Most Economical'

Washington — (P) — The justice department presented evidence today that two companies exercised indirect control over 96.6 per cent of the nation's glass container production.

These companies were identified by F. G. Smith, president of the Hartford-Empire company, Hartford, Conn., as being his concern and the Owens-Illinois Glass company.

Smith told the federal monopoly committee that these two firms hold patents on essential machines for feeding liquid glass into blowers. The process employed by the machines are the "most economical" known, he testified.

At the same time Hugh Cox, justice department attorney conducting the hearing, brought out that the Owens-Illinois company had no licensed any outside concern to use its process since 1914, so that any one desiring now to go into the glass industry and compete with established manufacturers would have to apply for a patent license to Hartford-Empire, or use a "streamlined" method, suitable only for the production of certain limited articles.

Patents Give Monopoly
"Isn't it true," Cox asked, "that as far as those machines are concerned, your company has virtually a monopoly on them?"

Smith agreed that as far as those particular types of machines are concerned, your company does have a monopoly, which is, of course, the monopoly given us by the patents.

Subsequently Cox introduced a "memorandum on policy" of the Hartford company, which stated that one of the main purposes in securing patents was "to block the developments of machines which might be constructed by others for the same purpose as our machines."

The memorandum said that another phase of the patent policy was "to secure patents on possible improvements of competing machines, so as to fence in those and prevent their reaching an improved status."

The committee began its glass container hearing after having studied last week the use of patents by the automobile industry. In that industry testimony showed a "free use" policy for patents; that is, a policy by which manufacturers holding patents generally licensed other manufacturers to use them without limitation.

Offers Tax Plan To Help Business

Government Expert Proposes
Re-Classification
Of Federal Levies

Washington — (P) — A former government tax expert proposed today a re-classification of federal taxation which he said would increase employment, spur business and increase national income.

Lovell Parker, for 12 years an adviser to the joint congressional committee on taxation, told the Senate profit-sharing committee that if the nation had a $100,000,000 income "all our troubles would be over."

Creation of a new "super tax" on net incomes of individuals and business firms from which deductions would be made for increased pay rolls, plant and machinery investments and direct charitable gifts.

Division of income taxes into three classes: Normal, surtax and super tax. The normal and surtaxes then would provide a "protective" margin of revenue, he said, and the government could experiment with incentive levies in the super tax bracket.

Parker made it plain he was proposing only a re-classification of present taxes and not an increase in levies.

High Court Ruling Orders 'Equality' for Negro and White Students in Missouri

Washington — (P) — The supreme court ruled today that a state must give "equality" in educational privileges to white and Negro law students.

It gave this opinion in holding that the University of Missouri Law school must admit Lloyd L. Gaines, St. Louis Negro, as a student.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the majority opinion that held Missouri, in compelling Negro law students to attend school outside the state, had violated the "equal rights" provision of the constitution.

Missouri provided that until a law school for Negroes was developed in the state the tuition of Negro law students should be paid at universities in adjacent states.

"The question here," Chief Justice Hughes said, "is not of a duty of the state to supply legal training, or of the quality of the training which it does supply, but of its duty when it provides such training to furnish it to the residents of the state upon the basis of an equality of right."

"By the operation of the laws of Missouri a privilege has been created for white law students which is denied to Negroes by reason of their race."

"The white resident is afforded legal education within the state; the Negro resident having the same qualifications is refused it there and must go outside the state to obtain it."

"That is a denial of the quality of legal right to the enjoyment of the privilege which the state has set up, and the provision for the payment of tuition fees in another state does not remove the discrimination."

2 Justices Dissent
The chief justice's opinion reversed a decision by the Missouri Supreme court in favor of the law school. Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented, holding that "the Supreme Court of Missouri arrived at a tenable conclusion and its judgment should be affirmed."

"That court," McReynolds said with Butler's concurrence, "well understood the grave difficulties of the situation and rightly refused to upset the settled legislative policy of the state by directing a mandamus."

"For a long time Missouri has acted upon the view that the best interest of her people demands separation of whites and Negroes in schools."

"Under the opinion just announced (by Chief Justice Hughes) I presume she may abandon her law school and thereby disadvantage her white citizens without improving petitioner's opportunities for legal instruction; or she may break down the settled practice concerning separate schools and thereby, as indicated by experience, damnify both races."

"Whether by some other course it may be possible for her to avoid condemnation is matter for conjecture."

Among other actions, the court refused to review a national labor relations board contention that the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship company should reinstate 145 seamen dismissed from two ships. This, in effect, was a defeat for the labor board. While the high tribunal did not pass on the merits of the controversy it left in effect a decision against the board by the fifth federal circuit court.

Charges Treasury Owes $23,000,000 To Highway Fund

Zimmerman Makes Allegation
in Suit Before
High Court

Madison — (P) — A charge that the state treasury has accumulated a debt of $23,000,000 to the state highway fund has been placed before the supreme court in the suit of Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state-elect to nullify the state emergency board allotments of $6,635,000, voted Nov. 16.

Zimmerman's attorney, Ward Rector of Madison, filed an amended petition with the court Saturday to bolster his claim that that tribunal should issue an injunction against the emergency board and pass upon the legality of $3,924,000 of the allotments.

The amended petition said that on Nov. 16 the balance in the treasury was $15,000,000 and when applied to the accumulated debt to the highway fund, left a deficit of $8,600,000.

Legion Opens Campaign to Stabilize Jobs

Seeks More Employment
For Men and Women
Over 40 Years Old

ALL POSTS ENTERED
Plans Announced to Carry
On Twofold Educational Program

Indianapolis — (P) — The American Legion plunged into a peacetime battle today and called its more than a million members into a nationwide campaign for stabilization of employment and more jobs for men and women over 40 years old.

The legion's employment committee, meeting in national headquarters here, said the organization's full membership in 11,493 posts throughout the country would be used for a twofold educational program to be carried on among the 25 largest employers in each state.

Committee Chairman Jack Crowley of Rutland, Vt., said his group would point out that stabilization of employment not only will prevent additions to the ranks of the unemployed but will return to employers "startling savings in their payments to state unemployment compensation funds."

Potential Savings
"Potential savings of one-half billion dollars a year in payments to unemployment compensation funds are in sight for employers who are in a position to stabilize employment," the committee said.

Other members of the group, in addition to Crowley, are: Jay O. Hormel, Albany, Ga.; Elbert S. Rawls, Lewistown, Idaho; Spencer S. Boise, Bismarck, N. D.; and Lawrence J. Fenlon, Chicago.

They explained that savings to employers are possible through merit rating clauses in 37 state unemployment compensation fund acts available to those who are able to build their reserves with the unemployment funds to a point equal to 15 per cent of their annual pay rolls.

Cooperation Asked
The committee's views, embodied in a resolution, said, in part: "Employment is a major program of the American Legion and each department, district, and post of the legion is called upon to cooperate to the fullest extent in securing the execution of the legion's employment stabilization endeavor as an important part of the national employment program."

"Fluctuations in employment in industry, with their attendant layoffs are a continuing threat to the employment of men and women over the 40 age group."

"It is deemed that any action by the American Legion which leads to a wider stabilization of employment would not only be of service to persons over 40 and to society as a whole, but would also increase the profits and stability of industry."

Lays Varied Rates To Large Salaries

TVA Planning Engineer
Points to High Pay of Private Executives

Washington — (P) — J. A. Krug, TVA power planning engineer, asserted today that high salaries paid to private utility executives were partly responsible for the difference between the authority's electric rates and those of private companies.

Testifying before the congressional committee investigating the government agency, Krug said other factors which make private rates higher than public included: Service and management fees, high construction overhead, "excessive" prices paid to buy out public plants and "watering the capital structure."

Representatives of power companies and some other witnesses have told the committee during its long hearings that TVA's rates were not a fair measure of the cost of producing electricity. They have contended there were "hidden subsidies" and that too little of TVA's total cost had been charged to its power producing functions.

Cardinal Mundelein Says Radio Priest Has Right to Air Own Views but Not Those of Church

Chicago — (P) — George Cardinal Mundelein made it clear today that the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin "has the right to express his personal views on current events, but he is not authorized to speak for the Catholic church."

In a coast to coast broadcast yesterday, Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, vicar general of the Chicago archdiocese, read a statement in behalf of the cardinal.

At about the same time, Frank J. Hogan, Catholic president of the American Bar association, warned members of his faith in a radio address from Washington to oppose all forms of racial and religious intolerance. He said Pope Pius had denounced anti-Semitism as incompatible with Christianity.

Transient and Motorist Die In Accidents

LAUDS AGREEMENT

New Orleans — (P) — Francis R. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, today hailed the Anglo-American trade agreement as an effective reply to the defeatism which appeared in some quarters after the Munich settlement.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the cotton conference of the American Farm Bureau Federation, he also declared that "crop restriction means economic retrogression and lessening of national income," and urged free trade to move American cotton into foreign markets.

Coroner's Jury to Pass on Mystery Death of Farmer

Post Mortem Shows No
Marks of Violence in Rock County Case

Janesville — (P) — Puzzling circumstances in the death of Everett Lincoln "Red" Pierce, whose body was the first discovered in Rock county's murder-suicide tangle, tentatively scheduled for presentation to a coroner's jury tomorrow.

The partly decomposed remains of Pierce, 74-year-old bachelor farmer of Milton, were found late Saturday under a foot of hay in a stack behind the home he shared with his brother, Sidney, 80.

A search had been made for Pierce, occasional associate of Curtis Hansen, 35, since Pierce's blood-stained coat was found in the car containing the bodies of Hansen and Mary Cunningham, 15. The car was located in a woodlot Wednesday, with both Hansen and the Milton Junction high school girl shot to death.

Coroner E. J. Overton revealed that a post mortem on Pierce's body Saturday night showed no marks of violence. The post mortem indicated, he said, Pierce died from exposure, with contributory causes a bad heart condition and evidence of pneumonia in the right lung.

Pierce's stomach content, however, was sent to state toxicologists at Madison for analysis. Overton said the coroner's jury might be formed by tomorrow.

Woman Attends Her Own Funeral Services

Centerville, Iowa — (P) — Mrs. C. W. Jones had the unusual experience of hearing her own funeral services at the Methodist church in Moravia Sunday.

The Rev. O. J. Fix of Burlington, former Moravia pastor, had been called to preach Mr. Jones' funeral. He arrived after the funeral party had gathered at the church and had no opportunity to learn. He was mistaken in thinking it was Mrs. Jones who had died.

As a result he preached a sermon built around the life of Mrs. Jones and did not learn of his mistake until he viewed the body at the end of the service.

Drunk Swings Fists After Arrest: Gets 60 Days to Cool Off

Melbourne Doyle, a "fightin' mad" transient arrested at Kimberly yesterday was given 60 days at the county detention camp in which to cool off when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning.

The transient, arrested for being drunk, showed some resistance. His "dander" was up and when he saw a red shirt on another prisoner at the county jail where he was taken, he let go with a nymphet that broke the other prisoner's glasses.

The boys in the jail grabbed him and put him under a cold shower, but even this did not cool him off. Dr. Stephen Konz, county physician was called to give him some "shots" to quiet him. Doyle apparently didn't like the looks of the physician either and swung another bay-maker. Dr. Konz suffered a cut lip. Sheriff John Lappen then went into action and put the unruly prisoner in a strait jacket.

This morning Doyle pleaded guilty of resisting an officer and drunkenness and was sentenced to 30 days in the detention camp on each count, the sentences to run consecutively.

William Smith, 51, Killed as Auto Crashes

CAR HITS POLE

Unidentified Man Fatally Hurt at Kaukauna

Outagamie county's traffic toll for the year climbed to 17 when an unidentified transient and William Smith, 51, 120 E. Third street, Kaukauna, were killed Saturday evening.

The transient was killed when he stepped into the path of a truck driven by George Garrity, route 7, Green Bay, about 6 o'clock on Superhighway 41 at the west on Kaukauna city limits, according to Kaukauna police. The truck driver and his companion, Lyman Brennan, 216 Broadway street, De Pere, told Raymond P. Dohr, district attorney, that the man crossed from the right side of the road and turned facing the truck before it struck him. Garrity was driving toward Green Bay at the time. Dohr, who found a pair of thick-lensed glasses worn by the transient, said the man may have become confused.

A jury composed of Mark Baumgartner, J. Drexler, William Steenis, George Hein, John Gillespie and Charles Huesemann, Jr., has been called and an inquest scheduled for this afternoon by Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, coroner. The victim had a broken neck and a broken leg.

Take Fingerprints
Attempts to identify the man were being made today. A card found on his clothing bore the name of Edward E. Stene, South Dakota. The name was found written again on the card with the notation that in case of an accident notice should be sent to that name at Stockton, Calif. The transient was given lodging at the Kaukauna police station last week and registered under the name of either Andrew Roth or Joe Schnitzer. Fingerprints of the victim were being taken this afternoon.

Smith was killed when his car failed to make a slight turn on old Highway 41 a mile east of Appleton shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday night. He was travelling towards Kaukauna and was alone at the time, according to Jack Frenz, county traffic officer, who investigated.

The car travelled 69 feet, side-swiped a power pole and then travelled another 21 feet before coming to a stop, according to measurements taken by Frenz. Smith had a fractured skull and the car was demolished. A resident near the scene of the accident heard the crash and found the motor of the car still running and Smith lying on the passenger seat.

No Inquest
District Attorney Dohr said no inquest will be held.

Smith moved to Kaukauna from Iowa 28 years ago and was employed as a machinist at the Chicago and North Western railroad shops. He was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Survivors are two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Moore, Burlington, Ia., and Mrs. Lester Penny, Davenport, Ia., two brothers, John and Walter, Burlington, Ia.

The body was taken last night to Burlington where burial will be held Tuesday afternoon.

The body of the transient was removed to the Schommer Funeral home, Appleton, where funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Cut on Forehead
Albert Borsen, 426 Third street, Neenah, suffered a severe cut on his forehead when his car and another driven by Paul Astrack, 158 E. Forest avenue, Neenah, collided.

Many Good Ones. (Never Been Used.)

"Bald pates cover up the best brains and promotions should come from that group" is the decision by several chiefs of the U.S. Army staff. Correct, and equally true of civilians. In fact, a nationwide movement to apply deplacitors from brow to neck is now confidently expected. This will of course not alter the fact that good used brains daily buy or sell good used articles through The Post-Crescent classified want-ads. Honest intelligence made a good sale through this one:

Newspapers Must be Leaders In Maintaining Freedom of Press, President Declares

St. Louis — (P) — President Roosevelt placed upon newspapers the major responsibility for maintaining a free press, in a letter he wrote for the sixtieth anniversary session of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch yesterday.

The president cited the Post-Dispatch platform written by the late Joseph Pulitzer, Sr., "as the ideal for which all American newspapers should strive." This platform, carried daily at the masthead, says in part that the Post-Dispatch "will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty."

"Our newspapers are so essentially public institutions that they are subject to the closest scrutiny of their readers," the president wrote. "Since it is the readers who make possible their patronage the publication of all our papers, perhaps the readers are entitled to be heard on the age-old question of a free press."

"But more forcible than any criticism from without is the self-searching inquiry of those within."

Woman Fleeed of $700; 2 are Sought

Milwaukee — (P) — Police today sought two well dressed men whom Miss Mary Anderly, 70, reported fled her out of $700 Dec. 8. She paid the money, she said, in exchange for an oil company's $7,000 bond preparatory to purchase from her of three lots valued at $6,300. But all she got was the receipt for the $700.

Flesh Seared When Doctor Grabs Cable But He Saves Life

New York — (P) — A young West Virginia physician stepped into an open elevator shaft on the seventh floor of Hotel Piccadilly today, grabbed wildly for the elevator cable and dropped 15-stories in a flesh-searing slide which seriously injured him, but probably saved his life.

The cable slide of Dr. Constantine Konstan 22, of Elkins, W. Va., stopped on the roof of the elevator which was on the second floor. His hands were burned to the bone, but he was conscious when hotel employees reached him.

At Roosevelt hospital it was said he suffered possible internal injuries, a fracture of the left leg and severe burns and abrasions on both hands.

Dr. Konstan's mother-in-law, Mrs. M. Manners who was walking behind him, saved herself from following him down the shaft by clutching the side of the elevator entrance and dropping to the floor.

Consent Decrees Not Aim in Dairy Industry Action

U. S. Lawyer Says Government Will Prosecute Cases 'Vigorously'

Chicago — (P) — Leo F. Tierney, special assistant to the attorney general in the prosecution of 97 defendants indicted on charges of conspiring to restrain trade in the dairy industry, announced today the government was not seeking consent decrees and intended to prosecute the cases "vigorously."

His statement was made in federal court, where the arraignment of 40 of the individual and corporate defendants was continued to Jan. 15.

The statement, read in part to Judge Philip L. Sullivan, disclosed that the government was considering civil, as well as criminal, action to effect a permanent cure of the alleged monopolistic practices in the industry.

Tierney made no objections to the requests of defense counsel for additional time in which to prepare their cases. He told Judge Sullivan the government, too, wanted an extension of time in which to meet the "myriad objections" expected to be made to the two indictments that resulted from the investigation.

Time Not Motive
The government is not sparing for time and the time is not asked for the purpose of delay or to seek a consent decree, Tierney's statement said. "The government is not seeking a consent decree either in this case (the so-called ice cream indictment) or in the milk case, and any idle chatter to the contrary is silly."

"The facts in these cases presented such flagrant violations of the Sherman act that criminal proceedings were chosen as the first procedure to be followed."

"I assure your honor it will be my constant and continuing purpose to prosecute vigorously to the end that convictions and punishment commensurate with the crime may be obtained—jail sentences, no less."

Tierney's statement said it was realized that "mere punishment" might not effect a permanent cure. "Criminal proceedings under the Sherman act are not entirely constructive. It is most likely, therefore, that at some future time suits in equity will be instituted to enjoin the practices of which complaint is made in these cases."

"But then, and only then, will decrease, consent or otherwise, be sought or urged by the government."

Foreign Correspondent Will Address Students

Leon Bouton, American newspaper correspondent who has been working in Berlin, will be the speaker at Lawrence college convocation tomorrow morning in Memorial chapel. Bouton will talk on "What is Behind the News in Europe?" The convocation, which starts at 10 o'clock, is open to the public.

Dog Fanciers to Hear About Boxers

Milwaukee Couple Will Show Dog at Kennel Club Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. John Phelps Wagner, Milwaukee will talk about and show a boxer, one of the newer breeds of dogs in America, at a regular meeting of the Northeastern Wisconsin Kennel club at 7:30 Wednesday evening in Neenah. The meeting will be held in the National Manufacturers bank building.

Wagner, in addition to being a prominent importer and breeder of good dogs, is associate editor of "The Dog News." The program committee asked him to talk because of his experience with boxers.

The meeting will be open to dog fanciers who want to join the club as well as to present members. Plans for a puppy match to be staged in February will be discussed at the meeting. Otis Hayes, Neenah, club secretary, is arranging the program.

Kaukauna Youth Named Principal Candidate For Military Academy

Robert W. Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton B. Cooper, Kaukauna, has been named principal candidate from this district for entrance into West Point, United States military academy, next fall. Congressman George J. Schneider said today.

Cooper is a student at the University of Wisconsin. The first alternate is Clyde G. Stephenson, route 1, Little Suamico, and the second Kenneth E. Higley, Marinette. Stephenson is attending Oshkosh State Teachers college and Higley the University of Wisconsin.

Cadet Benoit Earl Glawe, Green Bay, will be graduated from the academy in June of next year.

Dr. Reuben Shaw Will Speak Before Education Group

President of National Education Association to Talk Thursday

Dr. Reuben T. Shaw, president of the National Education association, will speak before members of the Appleton Education association at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Wilson Junior High school auditorium. Dr. Shaw's visit will be the first of a National Education association president to Appleton and arrangements are being made by Frank Taylor, president of the Appleton chapter, to entertain him. A luncheon will be held in his honor Thursday noon at the Conway hotel.

Letters have been sent to schools in the vicinity of Appleton inviting teachers to attend. A blanket invitation also has been sent to rural school teachers in Outagamie county.

Dr. Shaw is a native of Philadelphia where the association was organized in 1857. He is head of the science department of Northeast High school in Philadelphia and is interested in the program of teacher welfare, in federal aid and in achieving the 10 per cent increase in association membership.

As a leader of the Pennsylvania Education association he helped to secure the passage of important legislation bearing on qualifications, salaries and retirement of teachers. The meeting will be open to the public. Members of Parent Teacher associations and others interested in education are being urged to attend the lecture.

W.A.T.A. to Show Films at Schools

Rex Ingram Plays Role in Sound Picture Financed by Christmas Seals

Two sound films, financed by the purchase of Christmas seals in other years, will be shown to Appleton high school pupils Thursday afternoon.

The films are entitled, "Behind the Shadows" and "Let My People Live." The showings are sponsored by the Appleton chapter of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association and the Appleton Health association.

"Let My People Live" was produced last summer by the National Tuberculosis association with an all negro cast. Rex Ingram, who played in Green Pastures, is one of the leading characters.

The films also will be shown at Appleton Junior High schools and at Kimberly High school this week. The Christmas seal sale in Appleton was started Thanksgiving day and will be continued through Christmas. Mrs. R. J. White, president of the Appleton chapter, is seal sale chairman. Persons who have not received seals in the mails may secure them by calling Mrs. White.

Home Economics Club Leaders Plan Meeting

The second meeting of the year for home economics club leaders will be held Friday at the Appleton Vocational school, according to Randall C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. Each organized club is entitled to send two leaders to the meeting.

Heil Enlivens Budget Hearings With Homespun Thoughts About Economic and Political Affairs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Visitors at the state budget hearings during the last two weeks have been getting a free course of lectures which might be called "how the business man of today looks at government."

The lecturer is Julius P. Heil, president of the big Heil company of Milwaukee, and as governor-elect on the Republican ticket charged with the duty of drafting a budget law which will provide 100 odd state departments and commissions with funds to carry on for the next two years.

Theme-song at the budget hearings—Governor Julius does most of the talking—is economy, and more economy.

Enlivens Hearings
Interspersed, however, are the pithy comments on economic and political affairs which make the budget hearings much more than a dry recitation of lists of figures, comments offered from a background of 40 years in business and industry by one of the most successful businessmen in Wisconsin's metropolis.

Slowly the new governor's political philosophy and his economic convictions are being divulged. On the basis of his abundant comments during the last two weeks, he is an individualist, as rugged as they come, firm in the belief that the trouble with the economic shape of things is too much government, and is equally determined to make it his mission in Wisconsin to reduce the stature of the governmental machine.

"Isn't it a fact," he insisted when Chairman Voyta Wrabetz of the state industrial commission was outlining the manifold functions of that department, "that all these industries—both private, legitimate industries?"

Discussing the work of the unemployment compensation division of the industrial commission, Wrabetz was interrupted by Heil again who declared that unemployment compensation charges should be met entirely by the government, if there must be unemployment compensation. (At present the cost of this insurance is met by a payroll tax.)

"The government makes the regulations for us," he went on. "They want our money, and they find fault with us. Our books are never closed. I can't even comb my hair these days without someone inspecting it before I comb it."

The new governor believes, he says frequently, that the less government interference with business and private enterprise, the better. "I want less interference for the big businessman and the small bus-nessman, the farmer and the merchant," he said.

Speaking of employment offices, which Wrabetz supervises in the industrial commission, Heil commented that "anybody who has a union shop doesn't need employment offices. They don't do anybody any good except during extraordinary prosperity when industry needs help to find men."

The string of employment offices throughout the state are "unnecessary instruments that are costing us money," he concluded. "If any employer can't find men that's his own hard luck."

Government inspectors appear to nettle the new governor. He tells with great relish the conversation which he says he had with a state oil inspector during his fall campaign. The inspector, he said, got $187 a month, but wore a diamond stick-pin and expensive clothes. And because the state didn't have the equipment to test the oil samples which the inspector obtained, the inspector took the company's word for the quality of the oil, Heil related.

Warmed up now, he continues, "every time a farmer wants to milk a cow an inspector is there to tell him how to do it and the sucker doesn't know which end to start with," he said.

Governor-elect Heil refrained from his usually free comment during the discussion of a budget for the state labor relations board, however.

He did say, though, that "when I become governor next month we aren't going to have any more strikes."

Chicago Prepares For Hot Campaign In Mayor's Race

Kelly, Ickes and Thompson Mentioned as Possible Candidates

Chicago — (P) — A mayoral razzle-dazzle which promises to rival high spots of the unforgettable "smack King George" campaign of 1926 was rolling up in Chicago today.

Though not a single candidate has called a derby into the ring, political speculators have been working overtime and confidently predict a cloud of toppers before the lists close Jan. 19.

Standouts in the early guessing about entries were the present mayor, Edward J. Kelly, Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, and William Hale Thompson, a former Republican holder of the office who contributed the slogan "keep King George out of America" in his successful bid a dozen years ago.

Supporters Busy
There have been daily delegations from local groups to urge Mayor Kelly's announcement; wires have been hot with Ickes' daily thought on the idea, and his supporters say former Mayor Thompson will speak out this week. But the aspirants can't enter for the primary until Jan. 4 and all reported under consideration have chafed away from premature formal statements.

Citizens, however, looked forward to a real hippodrome both before the primary, Feb. 28, when the parties will select their candidates, and the municipal balloting April 4.

They are already lining up Kelly, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and perhaps Ickes in the Democratic nomination battle. It would be an old grudge fight in the case of Kelly and Courtney. They have been on opposite sides in all the Kelly-Nash-Gov. Henry Horner factional scraps. National committee-man Patrick Nash is Kelly's ally.

Courtney went into the Cook county prosecutorship in 1932 on a promise to clean out the gangsters and his own policemen have been busy for months demolishing gamblers' handbooks joints.

Many Names Mentioned
Republicans who don't like the Thompson candidacy have been mentioning a lot of names prominent locally and nationally, including Dwight H. Greene, the young federal prosecutor who imprisoned Al Capone; and Charles S. Dewey, a cousin of New York's prosecutor Thomas Dewey and a strong, though unsuccessful, contender last month for a congressional seat.

They went a ripsnorter campaign, for they recognize Thompson's showmanship talents are extraordinary. He was the cowboy mayor in his first successful campaign in 1915, demanded freedom for Ireland in his 1919 win, and his threat to punch the late King George of England on the snout was a boast heard 'round the world when he triumphed the third time.

Dr. Flory to Talk Before Educators

Dr. Charles D. Flory, assistant professor of education at Lawrence college, will speak at a meeting of the Fox River Valley Alpha-Kappa chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa Tuesday evening at the Elk's club in Fond du Lac.

Frivolous Christmas in Store as Lingerie Is Shown Lavishly Trimmed With Lace, Ribbon

Lace gives a luxurious touch to a pale blue satin lingerie gift set of panties and slip. It trims the top of the slip and is inset at the scalloped hem.

BY ADELAIDE KERR

The feminine folderols which have already sifted from Santa's sack point to a frivolous Christmas.

Lacy lingerie, "kitten sweaters" and gay little jackets are heaped on counters. Gem-studded necklaces and flaming heart clips shimmer in show cases and perfumes and powders come wrapped in boxes gay as a Christmas tree.

Lingerie's Christmas carol is an old-fashioned air. A number of night-dresses are trimmed with lace yokes reminiscent of grandmother's day and many of them are designed with sleeves either short and puffed or long and full. Slips and panties are lavishly trimmed with lace or with beading threaded with satin ribbon. The season even has seen the return of boudoir caps—frothy little triangles of chiffon and lace, which perch on top of the head and may be tied on with ribbons. Jackets and little wraps are among the most appealing gifts in the whole Yuletide array. There are scores of new bed jackets—suave little affairs of lace-trimmed chiffon or satin, cold-morning coats of quilted silk or wool.

challis and lazy-evening coats. After them comes an army of gay velvet jackets to transform the appearance of frocks, pastel angora evening sweaters, soft as a kitten's ear, and white lapin jackets for the college girl's evening wrap.

Christmas gloves are interesting too. There are some new white bunny mittens for the school girl's holiday parties and twelve-button pastel suede gloves for her worldlier older sister.

New costume jewels for Christmas giving are a whole story in themselves. Bracelets are one of the most interesting chapters. They are made of chains strung with charms or fashioned wide as a slave's anklet, sometimes studded with jewels. The design of some of the new necklaces is inspired by India and clips are here in such novel effects as a gold flaming heart with flaming topaz drops, an eighteenth century door knocker and a "diamond" orchid with "ruby" veins.

A 10-ounce package of pitted dates will measure about one and one-half cups.

Eden's Visit to America Hits at Hitler's Warning

Refuses to Pay Attention To Dictator's Prohibition

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Why did Anthony Eden come to America at this time? His first address can be studied in vain for the answer. Nor does there seem to be a clue in the statement of Prime Minister Chamberlain that Mr. Eden, exponent of the opposition, comes here with the full approval of the British cabinet.

Mr. Eden made it very clear that he didn't come to get us to pull anybody's chest out of the fire—the usual reason suspected by anti-British Americans when anything is proposed by the British in the way of Anglo-American cooperation.

Then, if the former British secretary for foreign affairs and the man who is likely to be Britain's next prime minister didn't really come to America to involve us politically in any alliances or international understandings, what was his true purpose?

The most plausible answer can be derived from a reading of the speech of Herr Hitler at Saarbrücken just after the Munich pact was signed. The world may have forgotten that address, but, in it, the German dictator solemnly warned England that there must be no more speeches by Duff-Cooper or Eden or Churchill. Indeed, the German Chancellor practically washed his hands of the pledge for an anti-war era so far as England was concerned by pointing out that, if an Eden or a Duff-Cooper or a Churchill came into power in the British government, he would be inclined to view things differently, and hence military armaments had to be kept up.

Reason For Trip

Mr. Eden refused to pay any attention to the Hitler prohibition, and, judging from the course of public opinion in England since the Saarbrücken speech and the recent mistreatment of minority populations by Hitler, the Chamberlain government has been distinctly on the defensive. What could be more appropriate for Anthony Eden to do to show Herr Hitler that he does not control freedom of speech in the democratic countries as yet than for the former British foreign secretary to make a trip to the United States and address a group of conservative business men, who, the German Chancellor might have been disposed to believe, were as interested in fascism as the German business men who permitted him to come into power and who have supported his regime?

But the business men of America are not fascists. They are democrats. And they showed the whole world what they thought of German fascism and the Munich pact by inviting the one man in all the world who typifies opposition to both.

Great Reception

So Anthony Eden came and was given a great reception. Germany's fascists today know that the people of the United States do not subscribe to the notion that statesmen must be muzzled or that they cannot discuss fascism or any other ism if they choose. Herr Hitler must know today also that, in the United States, public opinion is deeply interested in what is happening abroad, notwithstanding the fact that the German government has mistakenly assumed its course is sympathized with here in more places than it is condemned.

So far as Britain is concerned, the Eden trip is significant, too, and a splendid piece of strategy. The British people will learn from the press comments here that the Eden speech strikes a responsive chord. When the peoples of Britain and France and the United States think alike about world emergencies, it isn't necessary to diagram or chart in definitive lines of action or in military alliances exactly what is in the inner recesses of their minds. Back in 1917, the German government made the mistake of underestimating the currents of American opinion, and today the Eden visit and the enthusiastic reception his words are getting may make unnecessary another fatal mistake by the rulers of Germany.

Public Opinion

What the average American cannot understand is on what ground the German government can possibly affect favorably the public opinion of America, when, after a plaintive appeal for the just treatment of the German minorities in Czechoslovakia, the German government turned around and imposed indescribable physical tortures on minorities inside the German borders, to say nothing of the outright confiscation of the property of those minorities.

The German government undoubtedly will get detailed accounts of the Eden visit. What better way to preserve peace in the world than for the American people to indicate to Anthony Eden on his trip to America that they stand for the same ideals he has expressed for, if some day Eden should become prime minister of Great Britain, his policies in world affairs will command greater respect in Berlin because it will be evident that the democratic doctrine he speaks is

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Pattern of Europe

Events in Europe this week have certainly looked rather odd. While Herr von Ribbentrop was on his way to Paris to sign a good neighbor pact, his opposite number in Italy, Count Ciano, was touching off an agitation, accompanied by threats of war, for the dismemberment of France. In the same extraordinary week Mr. Oswald Pirow, who is Minister of Defense in the Union of South Africa, came back to London from Berlin and Rome, and announced that there would be war this next spring unless there is a complete change of outlook within the next month or two.

If all this seems unintelligible, it is only because we have not yet learned to understand the logic which drives revolutionary imperialism and the strategy which it employs. And so, though the main pattern of current European history is, I think, clear, though every principal move for the past four years has been predicted, the whole thing is so alien to what the Western nations are used to thinking and so contrary to what they prefer to think, that they are continually astonished by what happens.

Hitler's Strategy Since 1934 Like Napoleon's

The dynamic center of the movement is, of course, the German revolution. To those who have realized that Nazism is not just a strong, despotic national government but that it is a revolution, it has been increasingly clear for the last four years that Nazism has had to follow two parallel lines of development. Within Germany it has had to move to the Left, that is to say, the moderate Nazis had to oust and destroy the older conservatives who at the beginning shared the power with them, and the moderate Nazis had to be replaced by the more extreme Nazis. This movement to the Left had to become more rapid and violent as the social structure of the older Germany broke down and the accumulated substance was used up. And then as the extremists rose to fully concurred in by the people on this side of the Atlantic.

Why, then, did Anthony Eden come to America? To involve the United States? Not at all. He came undoubtedly to articulate loud enough and clearly enough for the misguided rulers of Germany to hear and read that the American democracy and the British democracy and the French democracy have not lost their idealism of 20 years ago and that, if there are any skeptics in Berlin, they might get copies of the newspapers of the United States and read the forthright expressions of approval which have greeted the man who wants the world to be alert to the dangers and perils which beset democracy today.

land of southern Russia. That has always been the great goal of Pan-Germanism; that is what the Pan-Germans before Hitler tried to get in 1917 when they had defeated Russia in the World War, and everything that has happened since Munich indicates that it is into the Ukraine that Hitler intends to go.

If we fix that clearly in mind and then study the map of Europe we shall understand such apparently strange and contradictory happenings as Herr von Ribbentrop's good-will visit to Paris, Italy's excitement about Tunis and Mr. Pirow's pessimism about a war in the spring.

The map will show us that the military road into southern Russia does not run through Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Rumania. It runs through Poland, and it may be predicted with reasonable certainty, therefore, that, whatever sidesteps there may be in Hungary and Rumania, the main theater of the next major crisis in eastern Europe will be Poland, and that the disintegration and dismemberment of the Polish state is now in the making. It will be an operation like that on Czechoslovakia, though on a grander scale; it will again be a movement "to liberate oppressed minorities." The principal oppressed minority will be the Ukrainians of Polish Galicia, though there will also be German minorities to be liberated, and then, of course, there will be anti-Semitism within Poland to distract and confuse and divide the Poles.

The Polish crisis is as clearly in the making today as was the Czechoslovak crisis last April. Poles Know They Haven't Any Allies But before this crisis can safely be brought to a head, and before Hitler can dare to move his forces through Poland and into Russia, he must make certain that he will not be caught in a European war. He cannot afford to get himself entangled in a Polish-Russian adventure if there is any serious risk that France and Britain will seize the opportunity to recover what they lost at Munich. Napoleon made the crucial mistake of entering Russia while England remained formidable in his rear, and Hitler cannot afford to repeat that mistake.

Therefore, as a preliminary to the main action through Poland towards Russia, a diplomatic campaign in the west is necessary. The pact with France, which happens to suit the immediate internal political needs of the Daladier government, has considerable value for Hitler because of its effect on

Real Goal Is Rich Lands Of South Russia

However much one may dislike all this, it would be foolish to deny that this campaign has been a work of genius. It is in the field of diplomacy a campaign comparable only with the great military campaigns in which Napoleon conquered Central Europe.

But, like Napoleon after Austerlitz Hitler has won a campaign but he has not yet won his war. For in themselves Austria, Czechoslovakia, and even Hungary and Rumania as well, are only pawns. Hitler himself has said, and there is no reason to doubt that he was speaking the truth, that his objective is the rich the Poles. As they read it, they will see that it seems to foreclose help from France when the time comes for Poland to decide whether to resist or to capitulate and be dismembered. And so, whereas the Czechs thought they had allies until it was too late, the Poles know in advance they have no allies.

However, this in itself does not make the enterprise secure. For as long as there is a powerful French army in being, the risks of entering Russia remain very great. So it is necessary to neutralize the French army, and this task has been allotted to Mussolini. By threatening France in Tunis, Corsica, Nice, Savoy, and from her rear in Spain, he may compel the French army to stand on the defensive on so many different fronts that it is immobilized and that has no real weight in Europe. That Mussolini hopes to get something out of it all is probable, but the real stakes are not bits of territory in Africa. The fundamental object of the maneuver is to make certain that the Polish-French and Russian-French alliances will not become effective.

If the maneuver succeeds, if the French army is pinned down on the Siegfried Line, on the Italian border, on the Spanish border in Corsica, and on the Tunis-Libyan frontier, then Britain will no longer have a foothold in Europe. For Britain has no army, and the British navy can count decisively in Europe only if it is the means for putting the resources of the world

Black Creek — Florian Rohloff was reelected president of the Young People's society of Immanuel Lutheran church Friday evening. The new officers are Robert Kaphingst, vice president; Janice Wickesberg, secretary; Maynard Nelson, treasurer.

The Churchmen's Brotherhood of St. John Evangelical church entertained the Brotherhood of the Evangelical church of Peace of Shawano at a Christmas party Friday evening. W. C. This, unless I am greatly mistaken, is the general pattern that current events are following.

PROGRESSIVES AND NEW DEALERS

In attempting to extend the influence and the anchorage of his new political party Governor LaFollette is probably finding considerable resistance and hostility, in part due to recent election returns but also ascribable more directly to the undeniable fact that principles occupy but an uncertain importance in the attitudes taken by many men in public life and by many periodicals too.

Among the most ardent New Dealers, particularly in the East, political leaders who were willing to die any day of the week and twice on Sunday for the privilege of having a hand in making America over, the resentment against Governor LaFollette seems particularly keen, in some places vicious.

These men who rather contemptuously refer to the governor's recent defeat and the alleged potency of the Democratic party are overlooking the fact that in Wisconsin the Progressives gathered nearly five times as many votes as the Democrats.

It is to be expected, however, that the Progressives will find considerable apathy throughout the union to the fortunes of a new political organization. This is occasioned largely by the factors mentioned but is influenced, too, by the mistaken notion among voters generally that Progressive leadership and the New Deal are one and the same. Thus the Progressives will be borne down by the weight of radicalism mixed with nonsense that has already destroyed New Deal influence with the people, an inheritance hardly unexpected and yet, all in all, quite undeserved.

For genuine liberalism in America, that represented usually in the public eye by a dozen or so senators of the Norris-Wheeler type, though it has made its mistakes like everyone else, does not deserve to be associated with the parlor Socialists munching on sugared doughnuts while they discourse volubly upon the "problems of the masses."

Judged over a reasonably fair period of time, say 20 years, the legislative programs supported or written by liberals of this hue have had as good a batting average for practicability as similar programs advanced by the more conservative Republicans.

Ordinarily, too, they have been careful about finances. They were never educated to the crushing Roosevelt weakness of borrowing and never paying excepting, as within recent years, they seemed to have been infected.

While the current of public opinion is running in a contrary way and making organization difficult only the young and inexperienced will bury the National Progressive party in the backyard with the feeling that it is gone for good.

FRENCH LABOR'S ERROR

Leon Jonhau, head of the French Federation of Labor, now pleads for moderation, and excuses recent workers' outbreaks against the government as caused by "new elements" in the trade unions, which, he says, were more easily deceived and misled than the old.

It is true that labor in France has grown from 1 to 5 million members in three years and it is to be expected that the undisciplined new-comers would bring some hot-headed ideas.

But the basic error in France was in striking against the government which is the use of an impermissible weapon against any democracy. Workers upon reflection must admit that this action is nothing short of carried to a successful conclusion, of the destruction of their own democratic ideals, a substitution of force and violence for majority rule operating through the peaceful line of legislative action.

A wholly different rule naturally prevails under dictatorial forms. There the worker has little or nothing to say. When a vote is denied him his voice is effectively silenced. And however much in a democracy he may complain against the government, or however justifiable may be his complaint, he knows he has a remedy, if he will but bide his time.

If labor may properly obstruct the life of a nation as it sought to do in France, it must concede a similar right to others. And since French farmers are also banded into federations, and in as great numbers as workers in theirs, they would have a right to bar all highways, obstruct traffic, cut means of communication, and otherwise conduct themselves violently to bring the government to its knees in respect to their claimed grievances.

After a few such occurrences the government would be weak and emaciated, and eventually an object for the derision of all. When a government gets down to that level it is time for the Man on Horseback to ride in and take charge, and such a coup could then be easily arranged because great masses of the people become hopeless.

It isn't a big circle, this trip from one tyranny to another, and it has been traveled often enough for men to become wary of it.

WAR PREPARATIONS

It becomes quite apparent that during the coming year the United States is going to increase its provisions for national defense.

It is likewise apparent that there is need for an increase, the extent of which of course will be debatable.

The world today is armed to the teeth. It would be foolhardy for America to fail to look over and appraise its defenses.

Even though America does not contemplate invading foreign soil at the present time for any reason, it must be prepared to defend its own territory in a world of nations seeking expansion and even come to the aid of fellow nations of the Western Hemisphere which are so intimately connected with our own security.

The great question then before the minds of our citizens is to what an extent shall we arm and in what manner.

This decision will be made first by the army and navy commands, and being experts in these fields they appear competent to exert good judgment, but the people are the ultimate judges, for their representatives in congress are the ones who order the piper paid and the people themselves pay the piper.

Military preparedness has changed in one material way since the World war. That war and ensuing smaller conflicts pointed the eye of science toward developing newer, better, more destructive and more protective implements of war. These developments today are coming so fast one upon the other that one piece of equipment is often outmoded a few months after it is created. As soon as a tank is built which can withstand the fire of any existing anti-tank gun, work is begun on an anti-tank gun which can penetrate that tank.

This explains why today the United States army has so few tanks and large guns and the navy so few planes. On the other hand the army and navy must be careful not to allow their forces to become so obsolete that it would take a great time to prepare for an emergency.

The new Garland rifle is a good example of an arm which is practical to produce in large quantities at the present time. It is believed to be supreme in its field and so complicated in its parts that were a foreign nation even to gain possession of blueprints, it would take a number of years for that nation to produce one, so intricate is the machinery necessary for its production.

There is much greater emphasis today on the training of personnel than there was before the last war. It is obvious that the latest in equipment is useless if there are not trained men, and literally millions of them, to handle such equipment. Too much credit can not be given such army reserve organizations as the National Guard, the Officers Reserves corps, the R.O.T.C. and C.M.T.C., not to mention the C.C.C.

Underlying all of this preparation, the principle must always be emphasized that a dollar's worth of value should be returned for every dollar spent on armament. Spending for national defense must be an orderly procedure, not a mad-cap spree made feverish by war-scare stories or intoxicated with military lust.

It is obvious that in these national defense plans there are many problems, many angles; it isn't just a matter of building more guns and ships and planes. The general public should not shrug its shoulders and pass it all off with the remark that this is the business of the army and the navy, for in the end every citizen of this nation is the army and the navy as well as the government, and he must decide in his own mind how much he wants to pay out of his pocket for the defense of his country and his state and his family in view of the militaristic spirit of the world.

THE FRANCO-GERMAN PACT

However easily treaties may be broken hope leads nations to make more and perhaps this may be justified in the thought that however precarious is their security some of them may endure.

The pact recently signed between the German and French governments doubtless brings a sense of security to the French people, distraught as they must be with their own troubles, but it is unquestionably of greater value to Berlin because France is not likely to breach it and assuredly German intentions point westward.

Whether the Italian dust-throwing at France was created at Hitler's instigation to hasten this pact or results from Rome's conviction that it is getting decidedly little out of its relations with Germany no one can know definitely except the interested parties. Yet in the past, friendships of the German-Italian sort have usually broken up either through envy or a division of the spoils.

This pact however is another definite step in the strengthening of Hitler's position. It fortifies him immensely as against the day when marching orders will point his legions into the Ukraine.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Bear with me, all ye others, while I tell my friends around Duluth the Amazing Adventure of their Turkey.

A month ago I happened to remark en passant that I did not understand why the country's leading chefs, in giving a banquet here to a visiting chef from London, specified that the turkey they served be from Minnesota. To me, a turkey was a turkey.

It was just one of the innumerable occasions on which my stupidity has served me to excellent purpose. Turkey growers of Aitken, in the Minnesota Arrowhead region, read my careless comment and said in effect: "It is high time you got wise to one of the facts of life, said fact being that Minnesota turkeys take their feathers off to no others in the world. We therefore are expressing to you for your Thanksgiving dinner a 30-pound bird into whose rich white meat we trust you will sink your teeth, if any, and give your palate a treat."

The bird was delivered to my office, which is many miles from home. I carried it, an hour's ride, to my domicile. I took it from its box, and then a great fear stabbed me. The bird was too large for my oven. Zounds! One cannot eat raw turkey, even from Minnesota.

I decided to put my problem before one of the town's famous restaurateurs. Would he roast the fowl for me? Yes, he would—for $24. I said: "Man, you are mad. For $24 I will roast it myself by holding matches under it."

He said: "So go ahead and burn your fingers. There I was with the finest turkey in town in my weary arms, and being asked as much to roast it as would cost for down payment on an automobile, practically."

I said: "Sir—if I may call you Sir—you are a buccaneer."

He said: "And you're a Wise Guy! You try to run my business for me! You tell me how much I shall charge to roast your turkey! Did I ask you to ask me to roast him? Did I send for you? No, thooey on you!"

I went to another restaurateur. I inquired if he would roast my turkey, on account of my oven was too small. He gazed at the bird in admiration.

He said: "Sir I am grateful for your generosity in bringing this fowl to me for roasting. My ovens will be proud to embrace him. They will wrap him tenderly in their heat, and he will come to your table brown and full of chestnut dressing. The cost? Sir, do not make ze joke. Once in a lifetime a chef gets a chance to work on a masterpiece. This turkey is my great chance."

My associate in domesticity, a Mrs. H., could not get over the horror inspired by the first restaurateur's insolent demand of $24. She went forth into the highways and byways of our community, and every housewife she met told (with gestures) about it; and the housewives without exception held up their hands in astonishment. And they said: "We always knew that restaurateur was a Grand Larcenist. This settles it. Never again will we give him pennance for so much as a single cookie."

Well, Duluthians, before you could say Jack Robinson there was a housewives' strike against that fellow. I'll bet he's sorry.

The moral is that New Yorkers don't have big ovens because they think little thoughts. They just can't understand that turkeys grow big—in Minnesota.

A BOOK

A book is a most understanding friend. That aims to make an honest meaning plain. It does not linger at the evening's end Saying "good-bye" again and still again. And then sit down with coat and gaiters on. And stay—and say "good-bye"—and stay till dawn!

It can be, if too boring, quickly flung Into the limbo of departed books. We do not have to listen, or among False friends, deny our boredom with sweet looks.

We disapprove, but happily we can Express our feeling freely, like a man! A book! A blessing on a sleepless night; A true companion in a lonely hour! A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—It is getting so a man can hardly blow away the smoke from a cigarette without finding himself engaged in (or affecting) interstate commerce.

Grover

Consolidated Edison is a tremendous power company in point of the number of kilowatts of energy it shoots along its network of wires and cables. Nevertheless, it operates in New York State almost (but not quite) to the exclusion of all other territory.

It sells power to city docks, to railroads and to enterprises which operate the tunnels operating under the Hudson, connecting New Jersey with New York. At no point does it transmit power under its own control outside of New York State. It seems a very small portion to companies which in turn use it in interstate commerce.

Emphasis On 'Affecting'

Now the national labor relations act provides, roughly, that federal regulations of labor bargaining shall apply to companies engaged in interstate commerce, or whose business "affects" interstate commerce. Under this act, the labor board claimed authority over the relationship between Consolidated Edison and its 40,000 employees. It is agreed that none of the Edison employees engages in interstate commerce. But the labor board contended that sale by the firm of a small portion of its power to companies which use it in interstate commerce brought Edison under federal jurisdiction. The board held that in event of labor trouble a power shut-down would "affect" interstate commerce.

The supreme court agreed. In the nearest recent approach to this decision the court upheld the labor board in its contention that a California fruit company which shipped 35 per cent of its fruit in interstate commerce was directly subject to the labor act. Now it reaches out to extend the act to a company which of itself does not engage in interstate commerce, but simply sells its product to those who do.

In explaining its case, the court pointed out that a labor strike would leave the docks without lights, thus "affecting" not only interstate commerce, but foreign commerce as well.

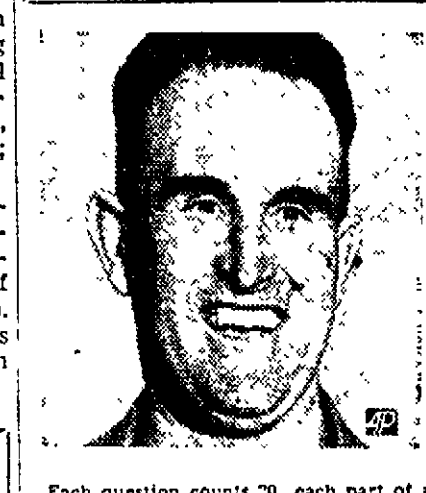

Moreover, it pointed out that a radio station uses the power, and in event of a shutdown the radio broadcast across state lines also would be affected.

Could Apply To Coal

Two years ago the court upset the Guffey coal production control act by asserting that the industry was local, not national, in character. What now is to offset an argument that coal mining is in interstate commerce because coal is sold to companies which engage in interstate commerce? That is one of the possibilities.

The court has veered about with in two years to a course that vastly broadened federal control over such matters as labor and industrial conditions. In the Consolidated Edison decision a member of the court for the first time gave some recognition of the change. In his dissent, Justice Butler rather forlornly referred to "the period" when the court was deciding another way, and he was one of the majority instead of the present slim minority constituted by himself and Justice McReynolds.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NORTH AMERICAN BERI BERI

The other day I commended the practice of supplementing the ordinary, everyday, refined diet, and particularly in cases of chronic intestinal trouble or colon derangement (wrongly known as "mucous colitis") when the sufferer follows a smooth diet, with an adequate daily ration of vitamin B complex, either in the form of wheat germ, rice polishing or brewer's yeast or combinations thereof.

I mentioned the specific value of this practice for the many, many victims of masked or undiagnosed beri beri (polynuritis, multiple neuritis) in all parts of this country where refined cereals or cereal products constitute the main source of calories.

Let us see how this masked or undiagnosed beri beri affects its many thousands of sufferers, people moderately well to do, able to enjoy what they believe are good living conditions, not aware of what ails them but just aware that they haven't very good health.

Weakness of the legs, especially after exertion. Palpitation and shortness of breath with slight effort. Pain, odd sensations, numbness or tingling in the legs, perhaps peculiar difficulty in moving the legs at time, or noticeable and unusual awkwardness in certain movements.

Areas of edema (dropsical swelling) here and there, and sometimes more general edema from weakness of heart muscle and consequent dilation.

Persistent pains in the legs associated with numbness, tingling or other odd sensations, are probably the commonest manifestation of North American, masked beri beri.

In the presence of such manifestations, especially if there is general malaise, constipation and loss of appetite or very poor appetite, the change for the better that follows the correction of the dietary deficiency or the regular daily practice of supplementing the diet with vitamin B complex is extraordinary.

In any case, there can be no possible harm in trying this out for a few months. Either the patient may consume daily four or five ounces of wheat germ meal or five or three ounces of dried brewers yeast or one or two ounces of rice polishing, or any combination of these.

The important point to remember is that such vitamin B complex concentrates are not medicine, but food or food accessories, and if the supplementing of the deficient diet with such foods or food accessories is to have any lasting results of course it must be a regular habit, the same as breakfast.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What a Brand New Bambi?

For years I had hoped and prayed for a "bundle from heaven." I had consulted several doctors and taken treatment in vain. Something you said about lack of iodine—six months after I started taking iodine I conceived. . . now I have two lovely sons. Told a friend who had been married years without a child. A year after taking iodine she, too, conceived and now has a son. I cannot praise your helpfulness enough. (Mrs. E. H.)

Answer—Well, anyway, the iodine ration can do no harm in any case. For instructions send stamped envelope bearing your address.

Complex Is Natural

Please explain difference between vitamin B-1 and vitamin B complex you specify for supplementing the diet. (W. B. E.)

Answer—Vitamin B complex means all of the entities or factors that grow naturally in or with vitamin B—including vitamin B-1 (thiamin), vitamin B-2 or G (riboflavin), anti-gray hair factor, anti-dermatitis factor, weight factor, nicotinic acid, black tongue, pellagra preventive factor, and several others. I believe vitamin B complex, as in wheat germ, yeast, rice polishing, various vegetables or concentrates made from these sources, is always preferable to pure synthetic vitamin B (thiamin), altho thiamin may be given intravenously or hypodermically with advantage.

What do you recommend to calm the nerves before a public performance? (A. M. G.)

Your Birthday

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 A. M. to 12:30 P. M.; from 2:30 to 4:30 P. M., and from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 A. M.; from 5:30 to 7:30 P. M., and from 9:30 to 11:30 P. M.

Half-way measures most likely will fail this day. You must display firmness in actions and words, if you want the right results. Beating-around-the-bush methods are likely to be very undesirable and responsible for many complicated conditions that might arise due to evasive answers. Above all things abuse no confidence. Regardless of the consequences telling the truth might involve, stick to it, for falsehood and deceit are not likely to be harmful. This day should bring you a great deal of happiness and a feeling of satisfaction. This thirteenth day of the month, instead of proving to be a "Jonah" is apt to turn out to be a very lucky one for you. Married and engaged couples, and those whose lives are being made brighter by Cupid's assistance, should exert themselves to add to the cheerfulness of the day, and do whatever they can to be entertaining.

If a woman and December 13 is your birthday, courage and steadfastness of purpose will enable you to overcome the average difficulty that might confront you. Go slow in opposing family and friends, for their advice is likely to be very valuable. Apparently your life will be a very interesting and happy one, with many things serving as preparatory steps that will lead you to success. By being a convincing talker you should have little difficulty in having your own way in most matters. Some line of research literary, dramatic, educational, music or promotional work may bring you a worthwhile reputation and financial security. Your matrimonial affairs ought to prosper in every way.

The child born on December 13 has generally plenty of personal charm, backbone and a high degree of intelligence. Lady Luck frequently makes children born on this date her proteges.

If a man and December 13 is your natal day, you may suddenly find yourself in a position of influence and power. Your means to obtain the "Open Sesame" to the portal of Success, may be made available through sincerity of purpose, and earnest endeavor. Art music, journalism, acting, preaching, selling, banking and manufacturing are among the activities in which you can be successful.

500 in Audience As Bands, Choir Present Concert

125 High School Students Participate in First Joint Performance

New London — The most successful indoor concert of New London school music groups was experienced at Washington High school yesterday afternoon when more than 500 persons jammed the lower auditorium to hear the accomplishments of the junior and senior bands and the high school mixed choir in their first joint program of the year.

About 125 students participated in the three groups. The increased time given to music instruction and rehearsals at the high school and the junior high school account for the success of such an early program, according to M. S. Zahrt, supervisor of music. Another concert probably will be held in the spring prior to the spring music festival contests.

Announcement of officers of the mixed choir revealed Paul Knapstein as president; Peter Laux, vice president; Mary Dawson, secretary; and Patricia Chegwin, librarian. Dawson also is secretary of the senior band.

Stage decorations for the concert were prepared by Miss Ena Crocker, fourth grade teacher at Lincoln school.

Plan Christmas Program At Church at Northport

Royalton — The Christmas program of the Methodist church and Sunday school of Northport will be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 21.

The following young men from Waupaca county are enrolled in the short course, from November to March, in Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin: Clarence Stillman, Royalton; Frederick Knapp, Weyauwega; Arthur Bowers, Marion; Robert Russ, Donald Campbell, Bear Creek; William Krame, Jr., Fremont; Donald Plant, Mukwa; David Loughrin, Manawa; Kermit Pohlman, Sugar Bush; William F. Steinbach, Ogdensburg; Matthew Davis, Glen Sasinke, John McCloy, Everett Jensen, Dale R. Bonikowski, Waupaca, and Elsworth H. Below, Edward E. Heidman and Oscar H. Malotsky, Clintonville.

A meeting was held in the Royalton township hall at White Lake Friday evening to discuss the cultural conservation program. This was one of a series held in every township in Waupaca county between Dec. 5 and 14.

Pribnow Is Reelected

Head of A.A.L. Branch

New London — O. H. Pribnow was reelected president of the New London Aid Association at a meeting at the Lutheran church parlors Friday night. Ray Matka was elected vice president to succeed A. L. Warnecke. Reelected were Leonard Learman, treasurer, and F. C. Reuter, secretary. Paul J. ### Pays Fine for Failing To Let Police Car Pass

New London — Udel Fassbender, Slinger, pleaded guilty of failing to allow another vehicle to overtake and pass him on the highway when he was arraigned before Justice Fred J. Rogers in police court Friday night. He was fined $5 and costs. Fassbender was driving a truck on Highway 45 north of New London and Waupaca County Patrolman Earl Polzin charged that he wouldn't allow the squad car to pass after sounding the horn.

New London Organization to Hold Yule Parties This Week

New London — Santa Claus will pay an advance visit to New London adults this week as many of the larger organizations will conduct their annual Christmas parties. The several big annual Christmas parties for the children will be given by New London businesses and organizations next week.

Games will start the party of the New London Teachers association at the American Legion clubhouse at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Santa will come to distribute gifts to the guests at about 9:30 and a lunch will be served about 10 o'clock by the American Legion auxiliary. In charge of the party are L. M. Warner, chairman, Miss Magdalen Knapstein, Miss Genevieve Smith and Miss Marie Hanke.

A lady Santa Claus will bring gifts to the party of the Business and Professional Women's club at the Legion clubhouse Thursday evening. The evening will begin with a 6:30 supper served by the American Legion auxiliary. Christmas carols will be sung and games will entertain. Being the only dinner meeting of the club this month, a business meeting also will be held and Miss Marguerite Scanlon, who will leave Dec. 26 for Washington, D. C., will be an honored guest-member of the club. Arrangements for the party are being made.

Balsam Christmas Tree Is More Popular Because of Fragrance

BY CLARA HUSSONG
At this time of the year a good many of us are leafing through the household pages of popular magazines and perhaps sighing with envy over the colorful pictures of Christmas decorations for doorways, windows and tables. We need not be envious because most of the material for these decorations are home-grown that is, native to the state, and can be gathered in near-by woodlands or purchased at little cost.

The biggest item in the Christmas decorative scheme is, of course, the Christmas tree. The south may have its Christmas holly and mistletoe, these are, after all, only touches in the decorative design for the holidays, but we in the north have ideal Christmas trees, balsam firs and spruces. Both of these trees do best in northern regions where the winters are long and cold.

Balsam Is Popular
Of the two balsam is the more fragrant and also because the needles are less likely to fall. A black spruce is, however, not a bad second choice and in the smaller sizes it is usually much better formed than a balsam. White spruce is not popular and seldom cut for Christmas trees because the needles give off an unpleasant smell. This odor has earned for the tree the popular nickname of "cat spruce."

If you don't know the difference between the spruces and balsams, you will be just as happy with one tree as with the other and you can keep spruce needles adhering to the tree by keeping the base of the trunk in a pan of water. But if you prefer one to the other, remember that spruce needles are square and sharp-pointed while balsam needles are flat and blunt at the tip.

Each year among Christmas tree purchasers you hear a lot of talk about "double balsam" and "single balsam," and to most people this means two varieties of trees. We have only one variety of balsam in the state but in the younger and non-cone-bearing trees the needles grow flat, on a single plane, but in the older fruiting trees the needles bristle all around. Last year we had a hard time convincing several doubters of this fact until we found a single tree bearing both kinds of branches. The tree bore cones and the upper three-fourths was covered with double-needed sprays while the lower branches were "single balsam."

Get Tree Early
It is a good plan to get your tree at least a week before Christmas but keep it in a cool place until ready for use. This will lessen the likelihood of falling needles. Trim off the unwanted branches and use them for wreaths, bouquets or table decorations. Add bright-colored berries or cones to give the sprays a touch of color.

Wintergreen, barberry, bitter-sweet and winterberry are colorful fruits which can be combined with evergreens for Christmas decorations. Winterberry is a native holly which grows so profusely in some parts of the state that it is known by many as "Wisconsin holly." I've heard several people call it by the name "Ilex," which is the Latin for holly. The shrub drops its leaves each fall but dealers in Christmas greens have learned to wire artificial leaves to the sprays of fruit. In Wisconsin and Michigan this native holly with the artificially added leaves is beginning to replace the southern holly, which is said to be getting scarce.

Christmas candle holders made and decorated with evergreen sprays and cones are distinctive additions to the holiday dining tables. If you have a favorite pair of candlesticks and wish to add just a simple touch, try placing a spray of red pine, with cone attached, in the center of the table between the candles. In my opinion, the graceful, long-needed pine with the feathery spray of needles needs no further beautification.

Christmas Greens
One group of Christmas greens which is becoming scarce is the low-growing club moss. We have four kinds, the shining club moss, ground pine, ground cedar and trailing or running pine. These moss-like plants and vines grow in evergreen forests but because they are so ideal for making evergreen wreaths they have been gathered too promiscuously. A number of Wisconsin nurserymen have been wise enough to put under cultivation all of our native berried shrubs which are popular for winter bouquets and holiday decorations. Although I've never heard of any, perhaps there are some who are growing ground pines and cedars as well. There must be a tremendous market for these plants.

A variation of the "garden-under-glass" idea I told about recently is the window scene. Choose a window which you do not ordinarily open through the winter. Between the storm and the regular window place first a layer of moss, of any or several varieties. Perhaps you'll need several layers to bring the floor of your scene up to the glass part of the window. Line the entire length of the sill with the moss, either on a level plane or create a hill and valley effect. If you wish insert a small mirror among some of the plumy mosses to simulate a lake.

Place a single cluster of pine, a small branch of cedar, hemlock or juniper at intervals in the moss, so as to give the appearance of trees arising from the ground. Leave the cones on the sprays for variety in color. Add other woodland material, a spray of wild fruits, rose haws, wintergreen, or a small sumach cluster. Cat-tails, open pods of wild plants, bits of bark or twigs covered with lichen are other woody bits you can add to the picture. Although the plants do not grow they remain green for a long time and the window scene can remain long after Christmas is past.

197 Memberships are Received in Campaign

Clintonville — A report on the annual Red Cross roll call by Mrs. Walter Sievers, chairman, shows that 197 memberships were received—a gain of 13 over last year. The total amount collected during the campaign was $293.13, which includes memberships and other donations. The Red Cross roll call was conducted by the Junior Woman's club, which has had charge of the project for the last three years. The amounts turned in by the various workers are: First ward, Mrs. Leo Polzin, chairman, $23.85; Second ward, Mrs. Eugene Volkman, chairman, $19.45; Third ward, Mrs. Arthur Schwandt, chairman, $23.40; Fourth ward, Mrs. Wallace Gates, chairman, $32.51; Fifth ward, Mrs. Ralph Laney, chairman, $30.26; business district, Mrs. Clarence Piehl, chairman, $34.35; public schools, Antoinette Kant, chairman, $38; F. W. D. Co., Lillian Schunk, chairman, $33.70, and St. Martin Lutheran school, $7.61.

Walter Lueck has purchased the John Peterson house on S. Main street and moved his family into their new home Friday. The Lueck family has for several years occupied the flat upstairs of the Tanner grocery store on S. Main street. Methodist Ladies Guild will have a Christmas party for children of the members on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 15, at the church parlors. It will also be "guest day." A program will be given, after which a lunch will be served.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Some of the best improvements in our educational curriculum are being sponsored by the progressive newspapers. Courses in carriage problems are now being offered high school pupils in dozens of states. The newspaper can be one of the most constructive forces for morality and education, as today's case will prove.

CASE L-191: Deborah K., aged 24, has been married two years. "I left my husband a month ago because he laughed and teased me when I had an accidental abortion," she began.

climb a stepladder and wash the windows of my bungalow. I think this was what made me lose my baby.

"Then my husband told the neighbors I deliberately tried to avoid having a child, which was absolutely false. I can't understand why he would say such things.

"Besides, he is so jealous my life has been miserable. And his mother criticized my housekeeping while I was in bed, ill, and now my husband constantly nags about it, saying 'my home is dirty'.

"He is a spoiled child, being the only son of a doting mother. But I have been an only child myself. Dr. Crane, am I to blame or do you think my husband is at fault?"

DIAGNOSIS: There are usually two types of such marital arguments but in the light of the evidence given above, I think most of you readers will defend Deborah.

Most of men and women enter matrimony with little or no conception of the rules of the game. If we joined a ball team, we certainly would expect to know the rules in advance in order to avoid errors and at times fines.

But society still lets young people embark on the sea of matrimony without a compass by which they can steer their course to happiness, thereby putting a host of the dangers of life on their shoulders. This is inhumanly unfair.

How To Be Happy In Marriage Happiness is not a miraculous thing that somehow depends on a young couple without effort or sacrifice. Happiness must be earned by diligent attention to the rules.

"But what are the rules?" young brides and grooms will ask. And at best they usually receive nothing better than a guess and saccharine sentimentalism as in some of those volumes on "What every young woman should know."

Most of these books had little or nothing that was concrete and specific. They contained romantic ramblings as might come from a poetical spinner.

It is high time we gave young couples a chart or rule book; a blueprint for marital happiness. Two years ago I surveyed 1,200 husbands and wives, asking each one, in private, what he liked best about his wife, or what she admired in her husband. Then I inquired about their faults.

From this list of thousands of virtues and faults of each sex, I finally compressed the essentials into a marital rating scale of 100-items. By means of this Test of Wives, therefore, Deborah was able to rate her assets and liabilities.

A Test For Wives Scores of high schools are using these tests in training their students how to prepare for successful and happy marriage. The state of Tennessee, for example, has included this new course in all its high schools.

The newspaper is responsible for this worthy and long needed improvement in the curriculum. It was the Knoxville News-Sentinel, for example, that initiated the movement down there through publishing its Marriage Tests and these daily Case Records in which I hammer away for happier lives and more stable homes.

If you wives are being laughed at or unduly criticized by your husbands, perhaps you are really to blame. On the other hand, maybe your husbands are wrong. Send me a long, self-addressed envelope with 6 postage thereon if you wish my Test for Wives. It will quickly show your virtues and faults.

(Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.)

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: It's now very late to write you my question and I am so sorry that I did not think about your help before. We had given our problem up long ago as being impossible to solve. My husband and I will be married thirty years on the day before Christmas and as we never in any way recognized the silver anniversary five years ago, we'd like to do a little something about this anniversary. But we have few friends here, as we've lived here only a short while and all our old friends and most of our relatives live many, many miles distant. We had hoped to be able to think of some way to announce our anniversary and with every one Christmas happiness at the same time, but there didn't seem to be any way to do this. Perhaps we could still find the time to have them made and sent out, if you would be able to suggest something.

Answer: I think the very nicest thing to do would be to have Christmas cards made of a photograph taken of you and your husband sitting together beside your own fireplace at home, or against whatever background in your living-room would make the most attractive picture. These personal photographs are among the very nicest greeting cards that can possibly be chosen any way. The inside page would of course be engraved with your names and a Christmas sentiment such as "Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Jones send you their Christmas greetings, and best wishes for a happy New Year," or whatever message you choose. Then under your picture one line in small script reading: December 24th and on the line below in proportionately large numerals: 1908-1938.

This would make the announcement that you want to, and at the same time carry no suggestion whatsoever of expecting presents or acknowledgments. I think that would be a very satisfactory solution to your problem.

Reason for a Receiving Line Dear Mrs. Post: What is the purpose of a receiving line at a party given to acquaintances? Does the person receiving and is this person supposed to introduce the guest to the one standing next?

Answer: It merely makes the difference of being welcomed by a committee who takes the place of the hostess at a private party,

Hold-up Play Is Not Always Best Strategy

BY ELY CULBERTSON
LAST MONDAY'S QUESTION.
Question 52: Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

East South West North
1 heart -
You are South, and hold:

♠ A J 10 8 ♠ None ♠ A Q J 10
♣ K Q 10 9 4

What call do you make?
Answer: You should bid two hearts. This, of course, is the strongest overall available and is absolutely forcing to game. Your powerful hand demands this action. A take-out double would be very unwise in that your void in hearts suggests that such a double might be left in by partner. (30 points demerit for 3 clubs; 20 points demerit for a double; 40 points demerit for any other call.)

(Last Friday's question, No. 57, was the final question of the examination.)

A pamphlet containing all questions and answers, demerits, and credits of this self-rating examination, and also announcing the few changes in the Culbertson system for 1939, will be mailed free of charge to any reader requesting it. Write to Ely Culbertson, care of this newspaper, plainly printing your name and address, and enclosing a 3-cent stamp.

West opened his fourth best diamond, the five spot. Success or failure of the contract depended squarely on declarer's play to the first trick. As every one knows, a hold-up play often is valuable, especially at no trump, the idea being to exhaust one defender of the led suit so that he will be unable to put his partner back on lead after stoppers in other suits have been knocked out. Like every other good thing, however, the hold-up play can be overdone and, in this case, if South had held up dummy's diamond ace he certainly would have been defeated. North's queen would have won the trick and a diamond return would have cleared West's suit. Declarer could not have run nine tricks without leading a heart, and the moment he did so West would jump up and rattle off diamond tricks.

Declarer did not make the mistake of using the hold-up play. He reasoned as follows: West could not have the combination, he would have led the king, not a low card. East, then, was marked with at least one diamond honor. If the diamond suit were split 4-3, it did not matter whether declarer played dummy's ace or ten, because the defenders could take only three diamond tricks and the heart ace. If, however, East had the aforementioned diamond honor and only one other diamond (which would place West with an original holding of five diamonds) it would be vital to play dummy's diamond ace. The heart ace then could be knocked out and declarer would not have to fear the diamond suit. If East had the heart ace he would have only one diamond, the honor, left in his hand. If West had the heart ace he could lead another diamond to East's honor, but would be unable to regain the lead. If West, on winning with the ace, chose to lay down a high diamond honor, he would drop his partner's honor and establish declarer's nine spot as an other stopper.

On this sound reasoning, declarer went right up with dummy's ace and had no difficulty thereafter in fulfilling his contract.

in contrast to entering a public building without having any attention paid you. Whenever there is a formal receiving line, there should be an announcer. In a private house where there is a butler, he always does the announcing. In a hotel, the hotel supplies the announcer. Otherwise one may be hired from a caterer. As each person approaches, the announcer says, "What name, please?" You tell him your name — "Mrs. John Jones" — and then he repeats it in a distinct, rather than a loud voice, and you enter the room. At most receptions of small or moderate size, a meaning anywhere from fifty to a hundred people — every one shakes hands with each person in the receiving line in turn and the names are repeated down the line. When the occasion is very formal, when four of the patronesses of a ball receive, for instance, the guests merely bow as they pass by the receiving line. At an informal reception where there is no announcer, Mrs. Jones gives her name (in full with title) to the first person in the receiving line.

Beauty and You

—by PATRICIA LINDSAY—

How many busy mothers would appreciate the gift of some salon facials? What joy and satisfaction!

Legion are the busy mothers who would get inexpressible delight from novel but practical beauty-giving remembrances at Christmas time.

We each know a woman who has always intended to treat herself to a series of facials, or body massages at a good salon. But somehow the family budget never seemed to stretch enough to include them. One of the children had to go to the dentist, or friend husband suddenly needed a new overcoat. So the generous, unselfish mother and wife, simply choked her yearning for beauty.

Can you picture her joy if a thoughtful friend or relative presented her with a ticket for those facials? Or perhaps it is a good permanent wave she really desires, or a few scientific scalp and hair treatments? What joy from such a gift, and how thoughtful the giver!

Other Novel Thoughts Being practical does not detract from the value of a gift, and the majority of women appreciate something practical in preference to something which is pretty to look at but has little use.

For instance, the woman who is slightly overweight, or simply just hurried in her domestic responsibilities, would reap not only great pleasure and relaxation, but actual benefit, from hours in a gymnasium class or in a corrective exercise class of a beauty salon. A season's ticket to a swimming pool is something more than a gift, but, I just feel queer. Mrs. Raff told me and Jessie's mother today, when she told us about the party, that she was going to move out of this neighborhood so that Peach Raff could have better social backgrounds. She said the people around here were all right, but they weren't the class she wanted her daughter to associate with, so she was going to move to the new development. Jessie's mother asked her if that was not going to be very expensive and she said yes, but she was borrowing two hundred dollars to move with. When she walked away a big hole in her stocking showed. Jessie's mother said she'd better keep the house she had and pay her bills and mend her clothes, instead of moving and sending her daughter to a private school. I'd like to go to a private school if you learned better there.

Money for a new well fitting girdle, a strong bristle hair brush, a handy manicuring set or even an occasional hair tinting by an expert — are all gifts which would delight busy mothers who have little money to spend on themselves.

Or if you prefer to give the gift — instead of money to purchase it — assemble a box of nicely scented soaps in the three popular sizes. Offer a cake of excellent complexion soap and tie it gayly to a good complexion brush.

Beauty kits, especially fitted with the recipient's favored cosmetics, are most acceptable. Even a generous quantity of any one of her favorite beauty aids is a gift she will appreciate, until its very last ounce is used!

If you have difficulty sleeping the nights of these hectic days, send for my leaflet "Slumber Inducing Exercises." Write me in care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

BY DOROTHY DIX

Daughter, if you want to keep your husband in love with you, let me advise you to follow these rules and see if they don't work satisfactorily:

First. Never disillusion him. Maybe when he marries you he is not quite gaga enough with love to believe that you are an angel straight from heaven, but he does think you are a pretty swell person and that he is lucky to get you for a wife. Keep him holding the good thought. Be easy on his eyes and yes-yes him whenever it is humanly possible to do so. Don't feel that marriage gives you the privilege of going slouchy and eating onions and speaking home truths.

Don't think that because you have hooked your fish you can throw away your bait. You know that your line was when you were trying to catch him. Keep on playing it if you want to hold him.

Second. Don't talk too much. Never tell your husband about your old sweethearts and love affairs. Burn all your old photographs of Tom, Dick and Harry and destroy their love letters before you marry. Never be tempted to relate romantic episodes of your past and how smitten you were with some, good-looking, and how you could have married some millionaire and lived in splendor instead of a two-by-four flat.

After you are married put the loud pedal on your achievements and the soft one on your mistakes. Every wife writes her own price tag for her husband, so keep your failures quiet and ballyhoo your victories. When you have the bread chuck it into the garbage can instead of showing it off. When you pay $20 for a hat distract your husband's attention from it by showing him the little dress you bought for $2.95 at a bargain sale.

Third. Be a lover. Before marriage a man does the courting. After marriage the wife must do it if the fire is kept alight on the altar. Don't expect your husband to take it for granted that you still love him, although you never mention it. He wants to be told daily and hourly that he is still that young man in your eyes, and that you think him the handsomest and cleverest and most fascinating man in the world.

Wives don't know it, but the strongest hold that any woman ever has on any man is his knowledge of her love for him. Many a man has married a woman he didn't want to marry because he couldn't bear to break the poor thing's heart when she was so devoted to him. And a few husbands ever start to roaming in search of forbidden sweet until the sugar supply runs out at home.

Fourth. Don't let the first baby put your husband's nose out of joint. It is pretty hard for a man who has been coo of the walk to be deposited by a bald-headed infant that looks like a cross between a cream cheese and a boiled lobster, so let him down easily. Give him some of your time and attention and petting. Chuck him under the chin occasionally and tell him he is the "funniest thing in the world. Step out with him instead of spending the evenings watching Junior sleep. Talk about something besides sterilized milk and formulas for baby food.

Don't push your husband out into the cold and therefore regard him not as a man, but as a slave to provide luxuries for your children.

Children Should be Taught Not to Live Beyond Income

BY ANGELO PATRI

Grace had been unusually quiet all afternoon and evening. Her mother wondered what was wrong, but said nothing, hoping that when the house was settled for the night they would have their usual friendly chat about the day's happenings.

No sooner had mother taken up her knitting than Grace asked, "Mother, why can't we have as good things to eat as the Raffs have? This afternoon Helen had some of the girls in and she told me they were going to have sandwiches from Truly's. And ice cream from the hotel. We never have things like that."

"No. We can't afford them, child. That would cost as much as we have for three days' food. We make our own ice cream, and you always say it's good."

"Oh, it is. Perfect. But the things they get are different. Stylish-like, you know. And they always have everything. They have a car and we haven't. All like that."

"That's true, we're saving for a house and your college education. And so as to have some money handy in case of sickness. If father was to be sick — We must be careful. You're not worrying about not having such things as cars and summers at the beaches? You have too much good sense. By and by when you are out of college you will have a good salary and you can have all the things you want then. And we will have more by that time, too. Just now we are building up our home and family."

"I know, mother. You and father are just great. I don't want anything more than I have, really. But, I just feel queer. Mrs. Raff told me and Jessie's mother today, when she told us about the party, that she was going to move out of this neighborhood so that Peach Raff could have better social backgrounds. She said the people around here were all right, but they weren't the class she wanted her daughter to associate with, so she was going to move to the new development. I'd like to go to a private school if you learned better there."

Mother counted stitches, thinking, "Should I tell the child? She's fifteen. She ought to understand something about this kind of thing, but I hate to teach her to gossip. This isn't gossip, it is an important idea for her to grasp." So she said, "You are old enough to know about using money. Tomorrow, when we are free of work, I'll go over the thing with you so you can know just how much money there is to do with, and what we do with it. We have to have your help."

"It's a bad idea to live beyond your income, Grace, if I thought you'd ever live to borrow money to move into a classy neighborhood, or buy a car when you hadn't the money to pay the doctor, I'd turn over in my grave."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, a self-addressed envelope for reply.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post. Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter. Adam Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: The murderer locks me in an empty room, then throws the key over the transom.

Chapter 18 Stabbed!

"I'll see you women down the stairs," Adam said heavily. "You're to wait in the library—together."

The went with him, docilely enough, but Mrs. Orpington turned back once to eye me coldly.

"You're staying?" she asked innocently.

I made no answer, and she seemed to expect none.

Adam joined me again at the head of the stairs.

"I want your story, but not yet," he reached the door of her room and barred my way. "You stay here," he said gently. "There's no need."

He was in the girl's room a long time. As the minutes dragged by my last lingering hope died. I leaned against the wall and wished he would never come out.

When he did his mouth was grim, his eyes compassionate. He spoke one word.

"Stabbed."

My eyes clung to his and he started going farther and farther away.

"I failed you," I whispered. "I killed her..."

The wall opposite began to lean toward me. Then the flashlight struck the floor and rolled over and over, making a crazy pattern of moving shadows.

Adam's firm hands had me by the shoulders.

"Sit down—now put your head between your knees. All right? Then sit still and listen to me. What do you think you could have done? Screamed? You wouldn't have lived long enough. Heaven knows where my mind was when I left you alone with her. Somebody had to kill that girl. I'm glad you let yourself be talked away. I'm glad you were not in that room!"

"And now let me tell you something else. I saw her. Her eyes were open. I think she was awake—I think she knew what was going to happen. And she made no outcry."

"She was—willing," I said painfully. "The poor thing—something she saw made her willing. Is that what you think?"

"That's what I think," said Adam. "Now tell me your story and try not to leave anything out."

The effort of remembering steadied me. I began with my recognition of the type that pitiless note and related, as well as I could remember, everything I had done until the moment Adam found me on the dark balcony.

When I had finished we went back together to that empty guest room and went over it inch by inch for some betraying trace.

The evening wrap lay where I had flung it. Black velvet—voluptuous ankle length. I held it up and recognized it.

"Mrs. Flower!" I noticed it this evening. It's just like her — see these long scarf ends that reach to the hem? It's one of those lush things. Made to order for the murderer — the scarf went round and round—"

There was no bulb in the light socket, a fact which explained why this room had been without light so long before the rest of the house. The missing bulb was across the room on the bed.

"Man Or Woman?" Adam said, "Here's your prostrate body," and chuckled grimly. "An army blanket rolled up and just not hidden by the bed. Quite a resourceful person, your murderer. You're sure you can't tell whether it was a man or a woman?"

"How could I? I didn't even get my hands on the creature."

"Think hard. Was there any perfume—tobacco, hallitosis? Where were your olfactory nerves?"

"Violent," I murmured, remembering. "The wrap reeked of it. Here's smell! So does Mrs. Flower."

killer was lucky — the mandarin coat was waiting in the room."

Someone was shouting from downstairs.

"Adam—Adam!"

"Yes, that trouble's not in the fuse box. Barney and I have tried every circuit. Shall I call up the electrician?"

"Wait a minute," I interrupted hastily. "The lights went off a matter of seconds before I heard the killer out there on the balcony. If it wasn't coincidence—and that's unlikely — then it was managed from up here, probably in that other room. Can't you short-circuit with a coin or something? I've read about it in books—"

They were shouting again from downstairs. Adam called, "Never mind—come up here. Maybe we can find the short." He turned to me. "Do you want to go down with the women?"

Remembering Mrs. Orpington, I shook my head.

"Not yet. I'll wait for you."

The two men came bounding up the stairs, preceded by the light from their flash. Barney looked healthier, as if he had succeeded in losing himself for the moment in the small crisis.

I lurked in the shadows, listening, while Adam told them briefly of what had happened in that closed silent room.

Yule Business in High Gear, City's Merchants Report

Shoppers Make Saturday Best Day of Current Season

Pleasant weather, the realization that Christmas is only two weeks away, and loads of attractive gifts in Appleton stores made Saturday the best shopping day of the current Yuletide season, merchants reported today.

"A very active flow of business," was the answer made by one store manager to a Post-Crescent reporter's inquiry. "Our Saturday business was the best this year and it exceeded the volume of the best day a year ago."

All the merchants questioned on Saturday's business declared it to be the biggest day of the season. "Customers were not only buying a lot of things but they were looking for the highest type of quality," one manager said.

Clerks hurried from morning until night, sidewalks were jammed with a moving mass of humanity, and police were stationed at principal corners to coordinate the heavy traffic. The weather was ideal.

Merchants interviewed this morning remarked that Saturday will probably mark the start of the most active buying of the present season. Store owners and managers expect the shopping business to run in high gear from now until Christmas.

Democrats Hold District Confab

Fifty-Five Party Members From Outagamie County Attend

Fifty-five Democrats from Outagamie county attended a district conference of Democrats at Hotel Beaumont, Green Bay, yesterday. The county had the largest delegation of the 16 counties represented at the meeting called by William Carroll, state central committee chairman.

Carroll talked on party reorganization and distribution of patronage. Mrs. Louise Given, Milwaukee, national committeewoman, also spoke of party organization. Gustave J. Keller, Outagamie county chairman, discussed the organization and activities of the Outagamie County Democratic club.

The meeting, attended by 350 persons, was one of four district meetings planned for the state. Others are to be held at Madison, Milwaukee and Eau Claire.

Warmer Tuesday, Weatherman Says

Thermometer Registers 14 Above Here Early Today

Fair tonight, cloudy and warmer tomorrow, is the forecast for Appleton and vicinity issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

Residents of the city awakened to the most brisk weather of a week this morning as Old Man Winter pulled the mercury down well below the freezing mark. The coldest reading in the city during the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning was 14 above, recorded at 6 o'clock this morning, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

At 12:30 this afternoon the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 23 degrees. Snow fell casually in the city during the day but was not heavy enough to affect streets or sidewalks. Snow is forecast in the northwest and extreme north part of the state tomorrow afternoon.

New Orleans, with 76, and Yellowstone, with eight below, were the hottest and coldest cities in the nation yesterday.

Peace Committee Seeking Way to Guard Americas

Alf M. Landon Is Chief U. S. Representative On Group

Lima, Peru—The Pan-American conference peace committee, with Alf M. Landon as the chief United States representative, took up today a sweeping project for safeguarding the security of the Americas.

The project was advanced by Venezuela. It defines what would be aggression from a non-American nation and calls for immediate consultation and common action by the Americas in event of attack.

Some of the delegates considered the project too advanced in concept for conference approval in its present form, but from the committee discussion may emerge a draft acceptable to all.

Some delegates saw a favorable omen for peace legislation in the address by Jose Maria Cantillo, foreign minister of Argentina, who said on Saturday that the American nations were ready to maintain a common front against any danger which might menace the independence and sovereignty of any of them.

Hull Avoids Committees
Much criticism of the Venezuela aggression project was that it did not consider the possibility of invasion of the hemisphere by political activities of the non-American nations, which both Cantillo and Secretary Hull, chief of the United States delegation, mentioned in their Saturday speeches.

Secretary Hull, although he announced a long list of United States representatives to serve on the seven executive committees, carefully kept himself from any of them.

He continues to function as chairman of the delegation and, of the highest importance, to consult with other delegation chairmen in furthering his hope for a common viewpoint at the conference.

Landon, former Kansas governor, took the most important executive post as chief of the United States delegation on the peace organization committee.

Landon's Proposal
The Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame university, revealed that Landon had offered to raise from private sources a fund for exchange of college professors between the United States and Latin America in an effort to better friendly relations.

In his address Saturday night Hull declared:

"There must not be a shadow of doubt anywhere as to the determination of the American nations not to permit invasion of this hemisphere by the forces of any power or any possible combination of powers."

He referred to political aggression of foreign powers in almost the same words, warning that "mankind is tragically confronted once more by the alternatives of freedom or serfdom, of order or anarchy, of progress or retrogression, of civilization or barbarism."

Emphatically, the secretary of the state reminded the western hemisphere of its very highest responsibility when "law is being undermined and impaired in many parts of the globe." He urged the conference to "preserve inviolate our own institutions and the beliefs on which they rest."

Young Republicans to Get Charter Tonight

Asks Cooperation of Business Men, Clerks In Traffic Problem

Traffic congestion in the business section of the city will be greatly alleviated during the holiday season if business men, professional men and clerks cooperate with the police by leaving their automobiles at home and walking to and from work, Chief of Police George T. Prim said today.

If this is done shoppers will be able to utilize the parking places usually occupied by two and three blocks from the avenue, the chief pointed out. There also will be less chance for accidents during the next few weeks if the cooperation asked for is given, Chief Prim said.

editorial sanctuaries and the newspaper counting rooms as to what constitutes their obligation to the readers of American newspapers."

President Roosevelt quoted Governor C. Hall, editor of the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser, as saying in a recent issue of the bulletin of the American Society of Newspaper Editors:

"That newspaper that happens to come by an enlightened-spirited publisher is fortunate; the one that inherits a stuffed shirt and a merchant can never again hold up its head. . . . Most of them (the run-of-mine publishers) came not from news room desks but from the counting room. . . . Few of them are journalists at heart."

Then Mr. Roosevelt commented: "Is the freedom of the press endangered from without? I doubt it. I am inclined personally to think that Editor Hall was moving in the right direction when he pointed an accusing finger in the direction of the newspaper counting room. . . . I have always been firmly persuaded that our newspapers cannot be edited in the interests of the general public, from the counting room."

PARKER FINED

Rudolph Risse, 37 Bellaire court, pleaded guilty of violating the city parking law and was fined $1 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. The motorist was arrested by city police for parking between 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning.

Hundreds of Needy Families Hope for Aid of Good Fellows

A good many families in Appleton will be anxiously watching the progress of the Good Fellows' Christmas fund campaign because on its success depends their hopes for a Merry Christmas. At least $600 is needed to take care of only the neediest of needy families, and at least $1,000 should be provided if something approaching all the needy families are to be helped.

All the eight charities cooperating through Appleton Relief and Welfare council have begun the task of compiling information about needy families to make sure that their Christmas baskets will contain the things they particularly need. For children there will be toys, for invalids there will be fruits and, for all there will be wholesome food and perhaps much needed clothing.

Needy families naturally fall into five classes or categories. First there are the families that have been reduced to difficult circumstances by unemployment, and there are many of those in the city. Then there are families with one wage earner who is trying to make it go by working three or four days a week, and finds it impossible to keep up with his expenses on his meager income. Then there are the widows and old people who are trying to eke out existence on county pensions ranging from $15 to $30 a month, out of which they are expected to pay rent, buy fuel and pay for their keep. Another class is the WPA worker, many of whom have large families, trying to go along on a government stipend of $48 a month. Then there are the families beset by illness in which the income produced by the wage earner is hardly more than is required to pay for medicines and special care.

There are hundreds of families like these in Appleton and many of them are in greatest need of help. They are barely existing. Ordinary comforts are practically out of the question. About all that can be done for them is to provide food, clothing and shelter to keep body and soul together. A Christmas basket means more to many of those people than an automobile would to the average well-cared for Appleton family.

As was stated Saturday, all the money provided by Good Fellows will be used for Christmas baskets and will be divided among the eight cooperating charities in proportion to the number of baskets they distribute. The average cost of a basket has been estimated at about $3, it goes by working three or four days a week, and finds it impossible to keep up with his expenses on his meager income. Then there are the widows and old people who are trying to eke out existence on county pensions ranging from $15 to $30 a month, out of which they are expected to pay rent, buy fuel and pay for their keep. at 2:15 Sunday morning at Caroline and Henry streets, Neenah.

Boreson was treated by a doctor. Five stitches were required to close the cut.

The Boreson car was demolished. Neenah police reported, and the front of the other machine smashed. The two cars collided and both crashed into a telephone pole, breaking it in several places. The Boreson car was going east on Caroline street and the other machine was going south on Henry street when the accident occurred, police said. The Boreson car was upside down near the curb and the Astrack car was on the sidewalk when police investigated the accident.

Mrs. Astrack, Leila Boelter, 210 Gruenwald avenue, Neenah, and Sylvester Kvale, 4034 Isabella street, Neenah, were occupants of the Astrack car.

Reckless Driver
Louis A. Stammer, 68, pleaded guilty of reckless driving and was fined $10 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Stammer was arrested by city police following an accident about 6:45 Saturday evening on North street. Police said Stammer was driving east and struck the parked cars of Kenneth L. Bey, 833 E. North street, and Lester Tesch, 323 E. Winnebago street.

Ernest F. Knapp, route 1, Neenah, and Edward J. Slegier, Winnebago, escaped injury Saturday afternoon when their cars collided on Winnebago County Trunk A in the town of Neenah. Knapp was making a left turn into a farm driveway when his machine and one driven by Slegier, who was following behind, collided according to the highway police report.

Fatalities in State
Five other persons lost their lives in Wisconsin through accidents reported over the weekend by the Associated Press. The dead:

Anton E. Hako, 54, Superior. Nels Jensen, 71, Withee. George Lipovsek, 59, Milwaukee. Ralph S. Hannon, 46, West Allis. Otto Perschbacher, 77, Milwaukee.

Hako died Sunday from injuries received Saturday when a circular rip saw broke and a missile struck him in the head. Richard Beck, 42, working with Hako, received an arm injury from a flying piece of increases necessary if the institution is to keep up its reputation in educational circles.

Faced with the demands of the governor-elect for economy in state government, Dykstra said the university's proposed budget can be curtailed in two ways. He explained:

"These are, first, to say to the young people of the state that they cannot come to the university in such numbers, and, second, to say to the people of the state that certain services, which a legislature has called upon the university to do, must be reduced or eliminated. The responsibility for decision in the premises lies with the governor and the legislature."

In the event a reduction in the university costs is deemed necessary, Dykstra asked an opportunity to discuss with the governor-elect the distribution of the reductions by appropriation accounts and the effect they would have on educational services.

Sends Report to Heil
The university president submitted a lengthy report to Heil in the form of a letter as the budget hearings were resumed at the capitol.

Before the officials started analyzing figures, Heil told Dykstra: "We want to make the University of Wisconsin the best school in the country, but it still is the duty of the governor to see that this be done as economically as possible. I want to see any duplication of work cut out and have the university run as well as you ran the city of Cincinnati."

Dykstra was city manager of Cincinnati before he came to Wisconsin. He assured the governor-elect he has been on "both sides of the table" at budget making time and understands the problem.

Aldermen Agree To Hold Neenah Tax Rate to $25

Council Will Formally Adopt Budget at Special Session Tonight

Neenah—The city council Saturday afternoon at an informal meeting agreed to adopt a $25 per $1,000 tax levy for 1939 and a budget of $725,574.85, it was reported today by City Clerk H. S. Zemlock. The council will hold a special meeting at 7 o'clock tonight to formally adopt the budget and set the rate. While the budget is a little higher than last year the tax levy will remain the same. The budget for last year was $638,600.

Receipts for 1939 will amount to $727,767.70, so the taxes will be $448,807.25. The taxes last year were $431,677.73, while receipts were $206,922.75. Contributing to the increase in the budget is the $74,303 for street improvement, paving E. Wisconsin avenue, E. Canal and Walnut streets.

Budgets Untouched
All budgets submitted by the various city departments and commissions were untouched by the council. The city school budget of $212,591.09 which is slightly higher than last year, remained. Estimated receipts will be $49,881.76, making the tax $162,709.33. Expenses for operating the schools this year are $201,004.51, and with receipts amounting to $48,069.73, the taxes are $152,934.78.

Besides the school budget there will be increases in the taxes of the library fund, street lighting fund, poor fund, and streets, highways and bridges fund.

Expenses for operating the library next year will be $11,005.08. The receipts will amount to $800, and the taxes will be $10,205.08. The street lighting fund will be $14,478.55, while the poor fund will amount to $10,168.42. The streets, highways and bridges fund will be $108,670.37, but with receipts amounting to $79,753, the taxes will be $28,917.37. The library budget for this year was $10,519.05 with the taxes amounting to $9,894.05, the receipts having amounted to $625. The street lighting fund this year is $14,003.62, while the poor fund is $10,129.37. The streets, highway and bridges taxes this year total $26,280.54.

Payments on Bonds
Other items on the 1939 budget will be: School bonds, $30,980.66; sewerage disposal plant bonds, $14,850.17; vocational and adult education fund, expenses $19,309.94, receipts $8,042.48, and taxes $11,267.46; sewerage disposal plant operation, expenses $21,126.50; sewer maintenance and construction $6,504.06; general and contingent fund, expenses, $152,925.57, receipts $140,290.46, and taxes $12,635.11; county and state tax $102,796.65.

The amounts of these items in this year's budget: School bonds $32,030.49; sewerage disposal plant bonds $15,177.79; vocational and adult education fund, $12,794.93; sewerage plant operation, $27,815; sewer maintenance and construction $11,502.21. The general and contingent fund was $146,197.65, while receipts were $147,053.72. The county and state tax amounted to $98,971.02.

Clintonville Is High in Tourney

Sweeps B Debate Competition; Shares Top in Class A at Neenah

Neenah—Ninety-six high school debaters from nine schools competed in a December tournament at Neenah High school Saturday with two teams from Clintonville winning six straight debates in the B tournament and Shawano and Clintonville sharing honors in the A tournament.

Five teams shared second honors in the A tournament. Neenah, Wisconsin Rapids, New London, St. Peter's of Oshkosh, and Oconto each winning three debates. Kaukauna won two contests, while Menasha lost six.

In the B tournament, Shawano and Wisconsin Rapids were tied for second place, each having won five debates. Kaukauna was third with three wins against as many defeats while Neenah, Oconto, St. Peter's of Oshkosh and Menasha tied for fourth with two wins against four losses. New London lost its six contests.

There were a total of 54 debates. In their arguments in the A tournament, Neenah defeated Menasha and lost to Shawano in the first round, then defeated Kaukauna and Wisconsin Rapids in the second round, and lost to St. Peter's of Oshkosh and Oconto in the final round. In the B tournament, Neenah lost to Wisconsin Rapids and Oconto in the first round, and lost to Shawano and Clintonville in the second round, and then defeated St. Peter's and Kaukauna in the final round.

Marie Levick and Constance Pfing composed the affirmative team and Ruth Cannon and Edward Levandoski the negative team in the A tournament for Neenah, and Marjorie Werner and Richard Radtke were on the negative team and Betty Borenz and Ray Matzdorf were on the affirmative team in the B tournament.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or may be telephoned. This number may be called before 7 o'clock in the evening.

St. Pat's, Neenah Teams Win First CYO League Tilts

Shamrocks Trim St. Mary's; St. Margaret Mary Beats St. John's

Menasha—St. Margaret Mary and St. Patrick parish cagers turned in victories in the opening round of games in the inter-city and inter-parochial C. Y. O. basketball league Sunday afternoon at St. Mary school gymnasium. St. Margaret Mary cagers trounced St. John's of Menasha, 32 to 19, while St. Pat's defeated St. Mary's of Menasha 36 to 24 with a fourth quarter rally.

A crowd of several hundred persons attended the games. Godhardt, former Menasha High school star, paced the St. Patrick team with 19 points with seven baskets and five free throws, most of them in the last half.

Reischel was the scoring star for the St. Mary team, which was composed of former St. Mary High school players. He accounted for 15 points on five field goals and five free throws.

Bert Remmel, another former Menasha High star, accounted for three baskets for the Shamrocks while Jewell and Jansen gave an expert demonstration of ball handling, as well as entering in the score.

The score was tied at 7-all at the end of the first quarter while the St. Mary team held a 14 to 13 lead at the intermission. The Shamrocks went back into the lead by the end of the third quarter, 21 to 18, and then stretched that advantage in the final quarter.

St. John Loses
St. Margaret Mary cagers started to put long shots in the third quarter to defeat the St. John Parish team 32 to 19. Phillip Hable, Neenah High school player of several years ago, was the high scorer for St. Margaret Mary with 9 points. The St. Margaret Mary team is formed chiefly of former Neenah High school players.

For the Polish lads Badger Nadelney was the high scorer with one field goal and six free throws for 8 points. In addition, he played a strong floor game and fed the ball to his team mates.

The first half was close with the St. Margaret Mary team holding a 9 to 8 advantage at the intermission. Shots from well out on the floor ran that advantage to 23 to 11 at the end of the third period. In the final period, the St. Margaret Mary team more than matched St. John cagers in points scored.

The box score:
St. Mary—32 St. John—19
St. Margaret—36 St. Patrick—24

Neenah Reserves Trim West DePere
Score Decisive 27 to 13

Triumph in Preliminary Game

Neenah—Neenah High school reserves swamped West DePere's second team, 27 to 13, in a preliminary game here Saturday night. In the feature tilt, the Neenah varsity submerged the Black Panthers, 22 to 14, in a Northeastern Wisconsin conference game.

The young Rockets had little difficulty trimming the West DePere aggregation, piling up an 18 to 3 lead in the first half. Winkelman paced the Rockets, netting four field goals and two free throws. Miller dropped in three baskets for Neenah. Key was high scorer for the losers, netting two baskets.

Box score:
Neenah—27 West DePere—13
Neenah—22 Black Panthers—14

Jerry Johnson Earns Grid Award at Neenah
Neenah—Twenty-six Neenah High school football players have received their letters for Jerry Johnson, whose name was omitted from the list when the letters were distributed Friday night at the athletic banquet at the Valley Inn, he received one. A check of his points showed that Johnson, a substitute junior center, had made enough points during the season to earn his "N".

Zephyr Cagers to Open Conference Season Tuesday

Will Open Defense of Title at St. John's of Little Chute

Menasha—St. Mary High school cagers will open their Fox Valley Catholic conference season Tuesday night at Little Chute, facing the team which leads the conference with three straight victories. The Flying Dutchmen of St. John's of Little Chute have scored successive victories over St. Peter's of Oshkosh, St. Norbert College High and St. Mary's of Oshkosh.

Although they won the conference title last season with eight straight victories, the Zephyrs face a hard road to repeat this year with veteran teams plentiful in the conference.

The St. Mary team has played three non-conference games, winning only the last one when they defeated Kaukauna Friday night by a 28 to 19 score. The Zephyrs for the first time hit their stride in that game, giving indications of a high-powered team with a strong defense. Previously the Zephyrs had lost to Appleton 29 to 19 and to Manitowish 32 to 28.

St. John Has 3 Wins
St. John cagers opened their conference season with a 31 to 19 victory over St. Peter's of Oshkosh and then trounced St. Norbert High by a 25 to 15 count. Friday night the Flying Dutchmen scored an overtime victory over St. Mary's of Oshkosh, 28 to 23.

The game Tuesday night will be the first of two conference games this week for the Zephyrs. Friday night the Zephyrs will travel to Oshkosh where they will oppose the St. Mary's team there.

The St. Mary reserve team will play a preliminary game at Little Chute Tuesday night. The reserves have an identical record with the varsity. They lost to Appleton and Manitowish and scored their first victory at the expense of Kaukauna.

Recent Budget Hearings 'Not Reassuring' to Wisconsin Labor, Ohl Says at Green Bay

Green Bay — Henry Ohl, Jr., president of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, declared at a banquet of the Green Bay Federated Trades Council Saturday night that the state budget hearings conducted by Governor-elect Julius P. Heil "have not been reassuring" to labor.

Ohl said, however, federation officers would confer with the governor-elect "and the legislature is going to know the program of labor."

"Perhaps, despite the change of administration, our prestige has not been reduced to a point where those fellows won't listen to us," Ohl said. "We'll soon know, and we'll come back and tell you, perhaps adding like a bedbug."

Ohl expressed optimism over employee-employer relations, asserting "in spite of all the disagreements we see around us, you will notice that at least the employers and the workers are arguing. They didn't use to argue much. The men said 'we want a raise,' the employer said 'No,' the men said 'we'll lie 'er-up' and that was that."

"Most employers are humane and reasonable, many more than there used to be. But we must understand our problems, and we must know and understand the division of wealth."

Invitations Go Into Mails As Christmas Parties Take Top Spot on Social Calendar

HARDLY a day passes but the mailman brings another bid to holiday party. Encircling the dates on their calendars, Appleton and valley socialites find that the holiday season will keep them busy with teas, dinners and dances. Although some parties are still in the formative stage, invitations to a number of them have been sent out already.

Among the Appleton, Neenah and Menasha persons who received invitations today to the dancing party which will be given Dec. 28 at the Century club, by the Misses Susan Hardy, Nancy Waite and Doris Hardy, were Miss Peggy Jennings,

Century Club To Hold Yule Party Tuesday

ABOUT 100 persons are expected at the Appleton Century club's pre-Christmas dance Tuesday night at Castle hall. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wesco are being assisted as chairmen of the affair by Mr. and Mrs. Don Morrissey, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Derber, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Steinberg, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hoffmann. Dancing will begin at 8:30, with an Appleton orchestra providing the music.

Leo Tennie entertained Sunday evening at a sleighride party, after which the group went to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Tennie, Stephenville, for games and lunch. In the party were Lorraine and Grace Van Berkel, Ardina Van Bakel, Isabel Driessen, Edna Vanden Heuvel, Lucina De Coster, Margaret Hawley, Amy and Eileen O'Neil, Esther Becker, La Verne Schroth, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Helser, Clarence Helser, George Ketner, Ray and Julius Pritzl, Ferd and Leon Ulman, Ervin Beyer, Raymond Schroth, Kenneth Fischer, Glenn Weber, Harold Komp, Sandy Kille, John Hoffmann, Mr. and Mrs. Servatius Ulman and daughter, Joan, and Celestine, Arnold and Leonard Tennie.

Miss Gwen Dittmer, Miss Margaret Relien and Mrs. William Albrecht entertained Appleton Riding club at supper Sunday night at Hearthstone tea room in celebration of their birthday anniversaries. The party followed a ride in the afternoon which was attended by 23 guests. Christmas decorations were used on the table.

Miss Betty Buchanan, Miss Mary Alsted, Tom Catlin, John and Sidney Dutcher and Robert Shannon, Appleton; Miss Nina Krueger, Miss Jane Strange and Tom and Fred Leech, Neenah; and Miss Mary Jane Sensenbrenner, Menasha.

One of the large parties planned in the Twin Cities for Christmas week is that to be given Dec. 26 by Mr. and Mrs. Kimberly Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Shepard, both of Menasha, at the Stuart home on Lake road, Menasha. The party is being given for the Stuarts' two oldest daughters, Mary and Kimmie, and for Mrs. Shepard's daughters, Mary Hoyt Cowles and Sally Cowles.

Bergstroms to Entertain
Another young people's party is that which Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bergstrom, E. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah, will give at their home Dec. 21 for their daughters, Alice Perry and Marjorie. The following Monday evening, Dec. 26, Mr. and Mrs. Bergstrom will entertain the older group of valley society at their home.

On Dec. 30, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shepard will give a dance at their home on E. Forest avenue, Neenah, for Miss Katherine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mowry Smith, Neenah, who will arrive home in about a week from Miss Porter's school at Farmington Conn, where she is studying.

Most of Appleton society is reserving the night of Dec. 29 for the Infant Welfare circle's annual charity ball, to be given at Rainbow Gardens. Arrangements for the event are in the hands of a committee headed by Mrs. Guy E. McCollison.

Program of Jewish Charity Groups Is Described at Dinner

The work of the American joint distribution committee for Jewish charities which he represents was outlined by L. J. Platt, New York City, at the annual United Jewish Charities dinner held Sunday evening in the social center of Moses Montefiore congregation. About 150 persons attended. Rabbi Ralph De Koven gave the prayer and a short address. I. Bahcall, treasurer of United Jewish Charities of Appleton, gave his report, and David Bliss played several piano solos.

Hostesses for the dinner were officers of Montefiore Ladies Aid society. They include Mrs. Adolph Hamilton, president; Mrs. A. E. Hamilton, vice president; Mrs. John Alpert, secretary; and Mrs. Sam Malofsky, treasurer. The dinner co-chairmen were Mrs. Adolph Hamilton and Mrs. A. E. Hamilton.

Adolph Hamilton, president of United Jewish Charities of Appleton, was master of ceremonies for the program. Other officers of the group are Mrs. L. J. Marshall, vice president; I. Bahcall, treasurer; and Abraham Sigman, secretary. The dinner is an annual event held in connection with the financial campaign which the organization conducts and which is now in progress.

ARTIST PUTS FINISHING TOUCHES ON SNOW STATUE
If travelers along River drive were to heed the gesture of the hitch-hiking snow lady which Miss Ann Russell fashioned and sculptured just after the heavy snowfall last week, they would need a truck or trailer to accommodate her for the figure originally was over five feet tall in the sitting position in which it is shown above. Miss Russell, who is better known as a painter than as a "snow sculptor," is shown putting the finishing touches to her masterpiece which displays an expression of expectancy as it waggles a snowy thumb at passing motorists in its position in parkway at 190 River drive, the home of Miss Russell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Russell. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Women's Chorus to Rehearse for Yule Caroling Expedition

Grand Officers Present as UCT Holds Booster Meeting

ABOUT 160 persons attended the booster meeting of Appleton United Commercial Travelers, and its auxiliary Saturday night at Odd Fellow hall. J. Guilbert Barr, Milwaukee, grand counselor, was the main speaker, and H. L. Bowby acted as toastmaster.

The meeting which preceded the banquet opened at 2:30 in the afternoon and featured initiation of 17 candidates. Mr. Barr addressed the meeting. Other grand officers present were George Limpert, Jr., Appleton, grand conductor, and Frank Finn, Appleton, past grand counselor.

The auxiliary's booster meeting was preceded by a luncheon at the Candle Glow Tea room. Attended by 41 women, the affair honored the grand officers present. Mrs. Rose Opperman, Milwaukee; Mrs. Pearl Wuerz, Fond du Lac; Mrs. William Rollinson, Mrs. Charles Rumpf and Leslie Pease, Appleton; and Mrs. Clara Gebhart, Racine. During the luncheon these state officers were given corsages. Mrs. Lloyd Hartwig, past president of the Appleton auxiliary, making the presentation. Mrs. George Buth, assisted by Mrs. George Limpert was in charge of the luncheon.

After the luncheon the group went to Odd Fellow hall, where five candidates were initiated. Mrs. Opperman, who is grand president, spoke. A special prize, donated by Mrs. Max Bauer, was won by Mrs. Erwin Schueler.

Social Program
Members of the auxiliary joined the men's group for the banquet, cards and dance which made up the evening's program.

Winners at cards were Roland Schabo, Mrs. Leo Zilske and Mrs. Edgar Milhaupt at schafskopf; Miss H. Peterson, William Blum, George Buth and Mrs. Arthur Council at auction bridge; and Mrs. Seymour Gmeiner, R. M. Radsch and Mrs. Fred Heinritz at contract bridge.

Next Saturday afternoon the auxiliary will give its annual children's Christmas party at Odd Fellow hall. A Santa Claus, gifts and singing will be among the attractions. Members who have children that will take part in the program have been asked to call Mrs. Alvin Krueger.

Missionary's Wife Lectures at Church

Over 300 persons attended the illustrated lecture given by Mrs. Albert Schweitzer, wife of the noted medical missionary, Sunday afternoon at First Congregational church which Memorial Presbyterian and the Congregational churches joined in sponsoring. Mrs. Schweitzer who for a number of years worked as nurse among the natives of Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa, told of the work which is being done to fight disease and sickness of all kinds and showed slides to illustrate her lecture.

Several phonograph records of Bach compositions played by Dr. Schweitzer on the organ were played for the audience yesterday. Dr. Schweitzer, in addition to being a medical missionary, is a well known organist and authority on the works of Bach.

90 Epworth Delegates at League Rally

NINETY delegates of Epworth Leagues of Methodist churches in Kaukauna, Seymour, Brillion, Neenah and Appleton attended a sub-district convention Sunday afternoon and evening at First Methodist church, Appleton. The afternoon was given over to reports, informal discussions and a song service, while in the evening the local High School Epworth League put on a play, "Why Should I?" under the direction of Mrs. Harry C. Culver. Vernon Tubbs, Seymour, conference president, gave a report on a recent youth conference at Boulder, Colo.

Tentative plans were discussed for holding a roller skating party at the armory. The next sub-district meeting will take place in the spring. Miss Elvira Meier, Neenah, president of Neenah sub-district, presided at the convention.

A short Christmas play, "Why Should I?" will be presented by members of high school Epworth League of First Methodist church at the Christmas party and program of the Argosy club Tuesday night at the Methodist church. Mrs. Harry C. Culver is director of the play and those who take part include Louis Phillips, Evelyn Kassike, Robert Kallist, Virginia Nabbefeld, Paul Kleist, Jean Pierre, and Guy Barlow. Mrs. Ruth Farmer will lead devotions.

Mrs. Lincoln R. Thiesmeyer will give the topic on "The Church's Social Work" at the luncheon meeting of Women's Auxiliary of All Saints Episcopal church at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the parish hall. Election of officers will take place also. The luncheon committee includes Mrs. H. A. Schlutz and Mrs. C. A. Kohl, co-chairmen; Mrs. F. W. Hammond, Mrs. Jay Williams, Mrs. R. E. De Long, Mrs. Herbert Henke and Miss Winifred Bright.

Mrs. Nancy Thomas, librarian at Appleton Public Library, will give brief reviews of some of the recently popular books at the supper and Christmas party for C. Y. W. of First Congregational church at 6:15 Tuesday night at the church. The members will exchange inexpensive gifts.

"Rural Problems of Health and Leisure" is the topic to be discussed by Mrs. S. C. Shannon at the meeting of Women's Missionary society of Memorial Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. K. Pratt, 122 N. Lawe street. Christmas music will be given and those who have articles for the Christmas box for the Indian mission are to bring them to this meeting. Assistant hostesses will be Mrs. H. H. Clausen and Mrs. John Moore.

Dr. Culver to Address

Church Fellowship Schedules Waffle Day for Next Month

Miss Astyre Hammer spoke on "The Origin of the Star of Bethlehem" at the meeting of Pilgrim Fellowship of First Congregational church Sunday evening at the church. Plans were made for a "waffle day" the first week in January and the following committee was appointed to arrange for it: Miss Hammer, chairman; Miss Mary Lou Jackson, Miss Shirley Miller and Miss Deloris Stueck.

A budget committee was named to include Frank Abendroth, chairman; Miss Beryl Chady and Frank Spencer, and tentative plans were made for a card party with Frank Spencer as chairman. Miss Beverly Olson, delegate to the Youth Council, reported on a meeting held last week. There will be an executive committee meeting tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mumme, Winona way.

Officers of Social Union of First Methodist church will be elected at a special meeting at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at the church. Final reports on the Christmas bazaar held recently will be given by captains and chairmen. The meeting will be adjourned in time for the members to attend the Missionary society party.

3 Holy Name Groups Name New Officers

THREE of the four Holy Name societies of Appleton elected officers at their meetings Sunday morning. St. Therese society elected earlier this fall and the new officers took charge of their first meeting yesterday.

August Arens was named president of Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church, Alois Stogbauer was elected vice president. Anton Koehn was chosen treasurer. Edward Reider, financial secretary, and Jerry Captain, recording secretary. Joseph Haag is the new marshal. Michael Kolosko, banner carrier, and Robert Kranhold, trustee.

St. Mary Holy Name society elected Patrick J. Heenan its president for the coming year. Harry Long, vice president; James Hobbins, Jr., secretary; and Joseph McCarthy, treasurer.

For the third consecutive term, Herman Giesbers was reelected president of Holy Name society of Sacred Heart church. Other officers who were returned to office are Charles Strobl, vice president; Roger Jacobs, secretary; John Faas, treasurer; Gustave Merbs, marshal; Vernon Overesch, assistant marshal; Matt Rasmussen, banner carrier. Consultants who were reappointed by the Rev. F. L. Ruesmann, pastor, are Conrad Verbrick and Joseph Bauer.

F. N. Belanger, past president of Valley council Boy Scouts executive board, was the speaker at the St. Joseph's meeting. He talked about scouting and the work of the committee of 25 volunteers will meet tonight to plan a reunion of all former Boy Scouts of St. Joseph's parish. Officers of the Holy Name will meet Friday night at the monastery, when arrangements will be made for the annual banquet.

William Hegner, Appleton attorney, gave an address on "Socialism and Communism" at the meeting of St. Mary Holy Name Sunday morning at Columbia hall. Seventy-five men attended. Preliminary plans were made for the annual banquet to be held Jan. 8.

Father and son day was observed by the men and boys of Sacred Heart church yesterday. About 75 persons attended the breakfast and Ed Schallor, Menasha, gave a program of readings including Edgar Guest poems.

Mrs. Rollin J. Manser, Mrs. Louis Bonini and Mrs. George Dam will be hostess at the dinner for Past Chiefs of Pythian Sisters at 6:30 Tuesday night at Heartstone tea room. Cards will be played after the dinner and gifts will be exchanged.

Election of officers will take place at the meeting of J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, at 7:45 Tuesday night at Odd Fellow hall. Plans will be outlined for a Christmas party on Dec. 27.

Santa Claus will visit the meeting and Christmas party of Catholic Order of Foresters at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at Catholic home and distribute gifts to the members. Cards will be played also.

Rebekah Three Links club has postponed its Christmas party and pot-luck supper from Wednesday of this week to Dec. 28. The club will, however, have its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon.

both languages. Groups will sing carols in the high school corridors Thursday, Dec. 22.

Dittmer, Green Bay, at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Those from Appleton were Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Trever, Miss Ruth Trever, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Fadner, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jabas, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Jabas, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jabas, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dittmer and the Misses Helen and Gwendolyn Dittmer, and from Neenah, Mr. and Mrs. M. Remmel and Miss Helen Munsche.

B. and P. Club Group to Hear Talk by Author

WHEN 225 persons sit down to a banquet tonight at Hotel Northland in Green Bay, preceding a talk by Miss Marjorie Hillis, noted author and lecturer, there will be 20 members of Appleton Business and Professional Women in the group for that number of women have chartered a bus to take them to Green Bay. The bus will leave Appleton at 5:30.

Although reservations for the banquet were closed last week, the Green Bay Business and Professional Women's club which is sponsoring Miss Hillis' appearance, is selling additional lecture tickets to those who wish to come in after the dinner and hear the talk.

Miss Hillis, author of such well known recent books as "Live Alone and Like It," "Orchids on Your Budget," and "Corned Beef and Caviar," will speak at Green Bay on "The Art of Gracious Living." Before becoming an author and lecturer, she was well known in the magazine and newspaper world, and for 18 years served as associate editor of Vogue magazine.

The Recent Graduates division of the Appleton branch of the American Association of University Women will have a business meeting and party at 7:30 Wednesday night at the Appleton Women's club. Mrs. John P. Reeve and Miss Marguerite Zuehlke are in charge of arrangements.

Miss Irma Hidde of New London Feted at Pre-Nuptial Shower

Miss Irma Hidde, librarian at the New London Public Library, was honored at a pre-nuptial shower by St. Paul's Guild of St. John's Episcopal church at the home of Mrs. C. D. Feathers at New London Friday evening. Miss Hidde will be married in January to C. K. Stein of Buffalo, N. Y. # What's New at the Library

Mark Sullivan, whose syndicated columns have been read by thousands and whose success as a journalist is equalled by his reputation as an historian, gives a vivid picture of American life which is at once humorous, profound and personal in his new book, "The Education of an American," now at Appleton Public Library. In its pages we see the last half century of this country through the eyes of an intelligent man whose curiosity about everyone and everything is his chief characteristic.

Copies of the Literary Guild and Book of the Month club selections for December are now or soon will be available at the library. The guild choice, "Count Belisarius" by Robert Graves, which already has arrived, is a story about a strong and resourceful cavalry commander centering about medieval Constantinople, and the Book of the Month, "Leonardo Da Vinci" by Antonio Vallentin, which is on order, depicts the famous painter, sculptor, architect, inventor, engineer and mathematician and in addition presents reproductions of many of his unusual and beautiful works.

"Such Sweet Compulsion" is Geraldine Ferrar's autobiography, the life story of the artist who thrilled music lovers of two continents with her song until her final appearance in 1922 at the Metropolitan Opera company, a farewell performance the equal of which has never been seen. The pretty little girl of Melrose, Mass., who began to sing at the age of three and who became the brightest star of the "golden age of opera" unfolds itself upon these pages without drawing upon the imagination or lending color or romance. It covers every phase of the singer's career including her student days, her life and career in Berlin at the Royal Opera where her royal friendships gave rise to shabby gossip, her marriage to Lou Tellegen and finally her life in retirement.

A very different Longfellow from the picture usually painted of a rather colorless and anemic personality is given in "Young Longfellow" by Lawrence Thompson. Fearless, enthusiastic and very much alive, the poet is shown in his struggle to achieve eminence in the world of letters at a time and in a country not designed to encourage a literary career. Many of the details of his almost tragic courtship of Frances Appleton, the "dark lady of Beacon street," are given in the words of Longfellow's own letters and journals. Previous conceptions of Longfellow have been based on his brother Samuel's volume biography in which Samuel edited the poet's journals and letters, altering and deleting passages inimical to Victorian concepts.

A former professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, Richard T. Ely, has written his autobiography, "Ground Under Our Feet." Called a rebel, heretic, reactionary, Ely, as a Columbia fellow in Germany, gloried in the new atmosphere of freedom and became imbued with the idea that "the beginning and end of all is man." He taught at Johns Hopkins, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Columbia universities where he made famous the "look and see" method. He taught men like Woodrow Wilson, Albert Shaw and John R. Commons.

The wheat fields, dairy farms, iron mines and quarries of Minnesota are put forward in "Minnesota, a State Guide," one of the American series. The state where the consumer and producer cooperatives are adopted with enthusiasm, where endless miles of superb forest, beautiful lakes and streams provide fishing and camping, where virgin forests are plentiful, is described in detail. A number of canoe trips which can be taken are outlined.

"Uncle Sam Ward and His Circle" by Maud Howe Elliot, is the life story of the brother of Julia Ward Howe. He wanted to become famous as a scientist but became famous as a lavish entertainer and lobbyist. He married a granddaughter of John Jacob Astor who died giving birth to his second child, and contracted a second and unhappy marriage. He finally emerged as a successful lobbyist in Washington, being known as "the king of the lobby."

Admiral Richard E. Byrd's five months isolation at Advance Base, the place far south of Little America, where in 1934 he nearly died, is the basis for a book entitled "Alone." It tells of an experience so intimate and personal that he was four years deciding whether to write it. Nobody else could write it because nobody else was there to know about it, for it happened to one man, Byrd, completely alone in the South Pole night.

The pastor of Riverside church in New York, Harry Emerson Foedick, is the author of a book, "A Guide to Understanding the Bible," which traces within the scriptures the development of the great religious ideas which underlie Christian thought and western culture.

Snow and Ice
If a cloud rises extremely high in the air, millions of snowflakes may come fluttering down to the earth. Snow is not "frozen rain." It is frozen mist, or frozen water vapor.
A snowflake is a bit of vapor which has turned into an ice crystal. Usually it has six sides or points.
Four snowflakes
Of thousands of snowflakes which have been photographed, no two have been found to be exactly alike. Nature seems to delight in making new forms.
Although most snowflakes have six sides or points, it would be a mistake to say that all of them are that way. In some snowflakes the flakes are of triangle shape. The triangle-shaped flakes are formed in very high clouds when the temperature is about zero Fahrenheit. Snowflakes differ a great deal in size. Some are so small that 15 of them side by side would measure only one inch. Others are a half-inch, or even an inch, wide. The large ones are apt to fall when the air is not very cold.
Snow does not weigh nearly so much as water. Of course the weight of snow is not always the same. When the crystals are closely packed, they weigh far more than otherwise. On the average 10 bucketfuls of snow will weigh as much as one bucketful of water. Snow which has lain on the ground a long time, and which has become closely packed, will weigh about one-fourth as much as water.
As I have said before, snow falls in summer as well as in winter. Those of us who do not live on high mountains are not likely to see summer snow—unless we happen to pass through a snowstorm during an airplane journey.
Most of the summer snow melts before it touches the ground, and the result is a rain or drizzle.
In England there isn't a single mountain tall enough to have snow on its peak the year around. Many other countries, however, have peaks which are snowclad in mid-summer. The Alps, the Andes and the Rockies are only a few of the mountain ranges with such peaks.
The line around a peak which marks the lower edge of the summer snowfield is known as the "snow line" or "snow limit." This is a high line in the torrid zone and a low line in the Arctic.
In the torrid zone the snow line is more than three miles above sea level. Some of the high parts of the Andes in South America, also certain peaks in central Africa are high enough to have snow the year around.

do with encouraging bullish forces to reinstate some commitments ditched last week. In addition, optimism for a business upswing in the forepart of next year continued high and tension over confusing foreign affairs seem to have lessened.

Seeds were among the best performers in the morning, also they backed down subsequently when it was announced this week's mill operations would suffer their fourth consecutive weekly drop. At that, the setback was in line with previous Wall street opinion.

Stimulating were the federal reserve board figures disclosing the seasonally-adjusted index for industrial production of the institution passed 100 per cent of the 1923-25 average in November, with the rate going even higher in December.

Dealings were moderately lively in the first hour, but dwindled as the session proceeded. Transfers were around 900,000 shares.

Renewed weakness of sterling and the French currency was a bit disconcerting marketwise.

Bonds generally ebullient stocks. Commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to up 1/2 of a cent a bushel. Corn yielded 1/4 to 1/2. Cotton, near the finish, was down 10 cents a bale to up 30 cents.

Today's Market At a Glance

New York—(P)—Stocks higher; industrials attract buyers. Bonds improved; all sections share in advance. Curb advanced; some specialties shift forward. Foreign exchange uneven; sterling, franc decline. Cotton irregular; trade support, foreign selling. Sugar even; trade buying. Coffee higher; foreign buying. Chicago—Wheat easy; trade volume small. Corn lower; no export business. Cattle weak to 25 lower. Hogs 10-25 lower.

Chicago Wheat Prices Decline In Late Trading

Transactions Drop to Small Volume; No Fresh Export Demand

Chicago—(P)—Price gains failed in the Chicago wheat market today, and toward the end of dealings quotations showed slight net losses. There was a lack of followup buying on advances, and trade volume dropped to small proportions. A handicap was apparent absence of any fresh export demand either for wheat or corn in the United States.

Receipts were: Wheat 85 cars, corn 10, oats 58. At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to 1/2 lower compared with Saturday's finish, Dec. 6-6 1/2, May 66 1/2-3, corn 1 1/2 down, Dec. 60 1/2, May 52 1/2-3, and oats 1/2 down.

Flying Eagle Patrol Is Winner in Scout First Aid Contest

Combined Locks — The Flying Eagle patrol of Troop 19, Kimberly, came out on top in the first of a series of preliminary boy scout first aid contests in the southern division of the valley council held Friday night at the school here. Members of the winning patrol are Don Verkuilen, Tony Rooyakkers, William Wachtendonck, Floyd Hopfensperger, and Tony Van Hout. Patrols which placed in the contest were: Curlew patrol, Troop 31, Kaukauna, second; Black Bear patrol, Troop 19, Kimberly, third; team from Troop 20, Kaukauna; Owl patrol, Troop 41, Combined Locks; Panther patrol, Troop 41, Combined Locks.

A. T. Gardner, Appleton, was chairman for the contest. Judges were William Courchane, Al Adams, Kimberly; James Richmond, Les Holzer, Edward Witte, Appleton; Herman Janssen, Little Chute, was recorder.

13 Hours Devotion At Hortonville Church

Hortonville — Thirteen hours devotion will begin at Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic church Monday evening. Sermon and benediction, followed by confessions with five priests present, will begin at 7:30 this evening. The closing services will be held Tuesday evening with sermon, benediction and procession. Masses Tuesday morning will be at 5:30 and 8 o'clock. Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament will begin after the 5:30 mass. The sermon Monday evening will be preached by the Rev. Father Skell and the sermon Tuesday evening will be preached by Rev. A. Grill. The Catholic Youth Council of Sts. Peter and Paul parish will hold its first social meeting and Christmas party Thursday evening in the Hortonville village hall.

$500 Damage Caused In Black Creek Fire

Black Creek — Damage of $500 resulted from an attic fire at the home of Herman Schmaling, N. Main street, about 10:15 yesterday morning. The blaze is believed to have started from a defective chimney. Mrs. Schmaling found the fire after noticing smoke on the second floor and she notified the fire department. The fire was confined to the attic, but the lower floors were damaged by smoke and water. Household furniture was taken from the home. The building is owned by Andrew Herman and the loss is covered by insurance.

Farmer Injured When Knocked Down by Bull

Emil Barth, town of Cicero, suffered a bruised leg and a back injury when a bull being unloaded from a small car trailer turned on him Saturday afternoon. The animal chased Barth around the car, but after knocking the man down stood and looked at him. Norman Lemke, who was helping Barth unload the bull, succeeded in getting the animal into the barn.

RUBBISH COLLECTION

Canvass for rubbish in Appleton in the second district will begin Tuesday morning. Residents of the district will place rubbish in containers at the curb. The district includes that section of the city from Drew street to N. Division street and from the river to the city limits.

CHRISTMAS GIFT SELECTOR

FREE $48 IN GIFT PRIZES 240 RIO THEATRE TICKETS FREE

SEE DETAILS BELOW

Address .....

HOW TO WIN

1. Read the ads in this Christmas "Gift Selector" carefully. In the two open spaces (top part) of the illustrated cartoon figures above—write, type or print what you think the little figure and Santa are saying to each other (not over fifteen words in each space). A new cartoon picture will appear daily in the space above until Christmas.

2. The conversation must contain the name of an advertiser whose ad appears here, and something about any gift that he advertises. Only ads in this "Gift Selector" and the names of the advertisers are considered.

3. Yes, it is necessary to clip out the cartoon illustration to fill in the words you wish to write in the two open spaces (balloons). Do not color or decorate. The cleverness and originality in the way you word the conversation is what counts.

4. The first two daily prizes are in the form of $1 gift orders on advertisers herein, and theatre tickets to the other five winners.

5. Yes, you can submit as many entries daily as you wish but each must be written in the space of a separate cartoon picture. Send same to Judges of Christmas "Gift Selector" c/o Post-Crescent.

At Least One Arm Of Government Is Real Money Maker

Collection Agency Turns In Annual Profit of Al- most Half Million

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison— Governor-Elect Heil and others of the new Republican economy-bent state administration may be expected to smile when the budget request of the collection and deportation division of the department of social adjustment comes up for consideration.

Governor Heil wondered the other day, during a discussion of state finances, whether there is any arm of the state government which makes money instead of spending it. There is, and it is the collection and deportation division, which produces a lot of money every year.

During the last fiscal year, a new report showed today, the division has recovered more than $500,000 from the patients themselves or those relatives who are made liable by law for the care of patients in state and county public institutions.

The sum represents the recovery from that 15 per cent of the total number of patients whom investigation by the division's field men showed were financially able to pay for their care in the state's 63 state and county mental hospitals or tubercular sanatoria.

Costs Only $300,000
The sum was collected at a total cost of about $400,000, or a little under 10 per cent of the total collected, according to an analysis by the board of social adjustment made public today.

This is shown the contrast with the situation ten years ago, when only a small fraction of the cost of caring for and treating patients in the public institutions of the state was ever recovered by either the county or the state.

In a typical year before the establishment of the state collection division, $30,000 a year was considered to be a good average for collections from patients or relatives of patients who were able to pay for hospital or sanatorium care.

In 1934 the state created a collection division to centralize recovery activities for the numerous state institutions. Collections for those institutions alone promptly increased to $97,241 that year. In 1935 the legislature enacted a law to provide that the division would also serve the county institutions. Collections jumped to $127,068 that year, and have steadily risen since with increases in the board's personnel.

This year the division, according to Blane Link, its head, will ask for an increase in its annual appropriation from $50,000 to $75,000, so that all claims can be handled more quickly and more effectively. Although it is not likely that the increased appropriation will result in a proportionate boost in collections, Link feels that still larger recoveries can be made.

Under the old system, that in effect before 1933, recovery of accounts of state institution patients was left to the management of each state institution. There was little incentive to collect from even those patients who were in a position to pay because the collections went into the state general fund rather than into the institution's treasury.
"The result was practically no recoveries except those who voluntarily offered to pay," Link observed.

In the county institutions recovery was the job of the superintendent or one of the trustees. These men attempted to recover from those of their county patients who were able to pay, but frequently overlooked the accounts of the patients from outside counties because those bills were met by those counties and the state.

State Left Out
"The state, although it was contributing better than $2,000,000 a year in aid to the county institutions, had no legal right to recover any part of this sum. The county was to do this. The result, even in the few cases where the county did make recovery, was often neglect to collect any part of the state's share."

As a result the collection division was formed, and is now empowered by a recent supreme court decision to make claims on accounts dating back to 1919. "Thousands of guardianships with ample funds to pay maintenance costs were discovered who were not con-

6-Point Program For Taxpayers Is Reynolds' Theme Urges Citizens to Tell Legislators What They Want

A 6-point program for taxpayers was advanced by Paul N. Reynolds, executive director of the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, in his talk at noon today before the Appleton Lions club at the Conway hotel.

If the taxpayer is to put an end to high government costs, he must insist upon six things, according to Reynolds:

"That public employees be chosen for ability, not for political influence.

"That public expenditures be carefully planned and that full publicity be given to what happens.

"That all assessments be fair and equitable.

"That the tax rate be fixed within the willingness as well as the ability to pay.

"That no bond issues be made for relief or other current expenses.

"That the taxpayer stand up and fight for his rights."

Speaking on the subject "Are You Too Busy or Don't You Care?" Reynolds declared that a citizen's responsibility was a year-around job.

"The responsibility of the citizen does not end, it merely begins, on election day," the alliance director said. "If the legislators are to really represent 'we, the people,' they must know our desires and the only way they can find out is for us to tell them."

Know Your Lawmakers

He urged his audience to get acquainted with legislators and discuss problems with them before and after the legislature meets in January.

Organized lobbying by pressure groups was the subject of criticism by Reynolds as one of the major causes of high taxes. People who want more spending are present at legislative sessions and committee hearings and are constantly in contact with their representatives, Reynolds said.

"Madison is a winter resort for the representatives of many of the spending agencies. The taxpayer, in contrast, seems to think that the legislator can determine his wants by some process of mental telepathy."

Reynolds said that the "let-George-do-it" attitude is one of the direct causes of high taxes and that "our yearning attitude has increased faster than our earning power."

Maverick Denounces Southern Legislators

Charlottesville, Va., (AP)—Maury Maverick, former Democratic representative from Texas, says in a magazine article that "many and probably a good whacking majority" of the south's senators and representatives "are the very worst enemies of the south."

His article, to be published tomorrow in the winter issue of the Virginia Quarterly Review, charges most southern leaders who reach congress do so by working for the utilities, natural-resource corporations, textile plants, insurance firms and mortgage companies owned by eastern capital. He contends that, in doing so, they become reactionary and opposed to the average interest of their own southern people.

Maverick, an outspoken New Dealer, was defeated in the last Texas Democratic primary by Paul J. Kilday.

Motorist Fined $10 On Speeding Charge

One motorist was fined for speeding and another for violating the city parking ordinance in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning. John West, 20, 1210 N. Appleton street, pleaded guilty of speeding on S. Mason street Sunday and was fined $10 and costs. H. R. Dutcher, 41 Belaire court, pleaded guilty to the parking charge and was fined $1 and costs.

Gerard Van Hoof, Little Chute, pleaded not guilty of parking his machine more than six inches from the curb and trial was set for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Tuberculosis Deaths Show Decline in State

Milwaukee—The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association figures show that 321 persons for each 100,000 Wisconsin population died of the disease last year. This year, the association estimates, the figure will drop to 197. Actual number of deaths in 1937 was 1,065.

SENILE DRUNK

Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning fined Mark Stenfaek, Iron Mountain, Mich. $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp after Stenfaek pleaded guilty of drunkenness. Stenfaek, a transient arrested by city police, indicated he would serve the sentence.

CHEST COLDS

Here's Quick Relief from Their DISTRESS!

The annoying discomforts of a cold in chest or throat, generally ease when soothing, warm Musterole is applied. Better than a mustard plaster, Musterole gets action because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"; stimulating, it penetrates the surface skin and helps to quickly relieve local congestion, aches and pains due to colds.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong. 40¢. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau.

EARLY MANUAL TRAINING WORK

Recalling days of the first manual training class in the old Ryan High school in 1886 is an exhibit in the manual training department of the new senior high school and part of it is shown above with Harry Cameron, director of the department. The bust on the right was carved by Judge Thomas H. Ryan. It is a likeness of I. N. Stewart who was principal of the high school when manual training was introduced. The head of Lincoln was carved by Judge Ryan in 1888. Mr. Stewart was directly responsible for the introduction of manual arts and it was he and Judge Ryan who appeared before the school board to get an appropriation of $30 for tools. Members of the board were Herman Erb, A. R. Whitman and Samuel Ryan. The clock shelf in the picture was carved by Herman Erb. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Pegler Dusts Off the Monroe Doctrine and Finds Something

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington—It would be a pious idea to take out a copy of the Monroe doctrine and read it again by the red glare of the Franco-Italian trouble. The people of this country would then discover that a principle which Americans have regarded as a protection against intrusion in this hemisphere by the ever-warring and insatiable nations of the old world puts it up to the Americans to protect the British and French possessions in the proscribed area. To be sure, there is an emergency exit by which this nation could escape a fight with Italy and Germany in defense of the French and British islands off our coast, French and British Guiana and British Honduras. But would we use it? Probably not, because these outposts in the hands of their present owners are harmless to us in the long-accustomed state of our relations, but in the possession of Italy and Germany would be guns pressed against our ribs by warlike powers which hate the United States and its form of government.

The Monroe doctrine says that "The American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers."

Obviously, the French and British outposts in this half of the world, and at that time Cuba, had not assumed a free and independent condition, and the French and British colonies have not done so yet. These were exceptions, but there is an implied promise by this country to prevent the capture or conveyance of these possessions, and it war comes between Italy and France as a starter, spreading, perhaps, to Germany and Britain, who would have the greatest interest in defending them?

In the vent of their capture by the nations of the axis or their cession to those nations by the terms of the peace Italy and Germany assuredly would colonize them, and not only that but would fortify them, garrison them and create bases for bombers and submarines and propaganda in a zone of the world where this country has been and, for its own good, must continue to be unchallenged.

Can't Permit Colonies To Get Into Wrong Hands

In this manner, then, the United States, by a doctrine which expressly shuns wars between European powers as being none of our affair, becomes a military ally of France and Britain in a certain zone of operations. Italy and Germany, weighing the consequence, might decide to let these possessions alone to avoid provocation to the United States and leave their distribution to the peace conference, at which time, if they won, they might feel strong enough to challenge us for them direct, with Japan to help them on the west.

But in any case, if the Franco-Italian war comes, these French and British colonies, so close to the United States and such convenient steppingstones to Latin America, where the Monroe doctrine applies with full effect, cannot be permitted to fall into Italian or German hands.

"We owe it to candor to declare that any attempt to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere is dangerous to our peace and safety," the Monroe doctrine says. "With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we shall not interfere."

The "system" which the United States undertook to exclude as dangerous to our peace and safety was not nazifascism but, like nazifascism, it was "essentially different from that of America," to the defense of which "this whole nation is devoted." There have been a couple of trifling irregularities on this country's part in the observance of the doctrine, notably when we did interfere with the existing colonies of Spain and did intrude in a war between European powers.

Still even these lapses will not be deemed to have abrogated the main purpose of the Monroe doctrine.

trine, to prevent intrusion and colonization by European powers in this hemisphere after 1823, and the introduction of a system dangerous to our peace and safety. The toleration of a nazi-fascist stronghold in Nassau, for example, hardly more than an hour by plane from Miami, would destroy the Monroe doctrine utterly and threaten the American system of government "achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure and matured by the wisdom" of the most enlightened citizens.

Accept Applications For Postmaster Tests

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—The civil service commission has set Dec. 29 as the final date for receipt of applications for admission to examinations for postmaster at Sheridan, a fourth class office.

Postmaster Milton J. Hanson was removed. Mrs. Catherine M. Hanson has been acting postmaster since Nov. 1. This office pays about $678 a year.

The examinations will be held at Waupaca at a date to be announced later.

Start Building School Addition

Project at Brillion Scheduled to be Completed Oct. 5, 1939

Brillion—Construction work on the new public school addition and alterations here began Friday and is scheduled to be completed by Oct. 5, 1939.

The sale of $41,000 of school district bonds scheduled for Friday has been postponed to Tuesday, Dec. 20.

The Brillion Lions club Thursday evening decided to have the annual Christmas party at a dinner meeting at Hotel Brillion Thursday, Dec. 29. Names were drawn for the exchange of gifts at the party. The committee in charge of the Christmas party consists of A. J. Leider, chairman, assisted by M. P. Becker and Attorney Edward Eick.

Thursday evening's program consisted of several instrumental selections by the Lions string quartet, made up of M. P. Becker, F. L. Luecker, J. J. Ecker and Dr. W. L. Boyden. Alois Fischl, president of the Manitowoc Lions club, and A. H. March, president of the Reedsville club, responded to introductions with short remarks.

Eight members of the Reedsville club were guests at the banquet and Milton Dettien, a great musician of Manitowoc, was the guest speaker. The theme of his subject was "An American in Italy."

The program committee was made up of P. N. Herr, chairman and toastmaster, Henry Horn and the Rev. M. J. Kraus.

During the business meeting appropriations were made to the Red Cross, Salvation Army and Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association.

Mrs. John Tesch is confined to her home because of illness.

St. Mary's Catholic Youth Council sponsored a public card party at the school Thursday evening. Thirty-one tables were in play. Bridge, five hundred, skat, bunco, and schafkopf were played. The following received awards: Bridge, Mrs. John Bartz and Mrs. Louis Mumm; five hundred, Mrs. John Stelmets and Mrs. Louis Rank; bunco, Audrey Burns and Irene Pritzl; skat Alfred Kleiber and Lloyd Pfeffer, and schafkopf, Joseph Bursak, Mrs. Paul Gennigen and Mrs. Paul Stelibrink.

The general committee in charge consisted of Wilbert Kleiber, Cyril Mittnacht, Edward Barth, Lawrence Ebenhoe, Miss Dorothy Schwallier and Miss June Holmes.

Mrs. Emil Reinhardt returned Wednesday from a two week's visit with her brother, Emil Schults at Waterloo, Ontario, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Hermance and daughter Carol Jean of Bristol, Ind., spent several days with Mrs. Hermance's mother, Mrs. Minna Janke.

Mrs. Elliott Zander was hostess to the members of her bridge club at her home Tuesday evening. Club members present were the Mesdames Otto Zander, Edgar Mueller, P. G. Zietlow, W. A. Holmes and August Schaefer. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. A. W. Reinke and Mrs. Ralph Kreshek of Appleton.

Mrs. Helena Koch entertained the members of her birthday bridge club at her home on Thursday afternoon. Club members were the Mesdames C. F. Fritzl, Charles Zutz, Edwin Juno, R. W. Schulze, August Schaefer, Tillie Koch, Rudolph Kruschinski, S. T. Barnard, William Abel, Elmer Schmeider, Miss Anna Barnard and Mrs. Russell Pease, the latter of Valders. High honors were received by Mrs. C. T. Fritzl, Mrs. Charles Zutz and Miss Anna Barnard. The floater was received by Mrs. Edwin Juno and Mrs. S. T. Barnard was awarded the attendance prize.

The Brillion I. O. O. F. lodge elected officers Wednesday evening. Emil Enneper was chosen noble grand; Arthur Radloff, vice grand; Elliot Zander, secretary; Lynn Williams, financial secretary; S. T. Barnard, treasurer; Charles Barnard, trustee for three years, and Oscar Bielek, trustee for two years.
